SECRET WEAPON RUMOR UNTRUE, SENATORS SAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rumors of a new secret weapon were heard in the United States Senate today but were widely discounted.

The rumors developed like this:

Two senators said a third senator remarked at an appropriations meeting that Defence Secretary George Marshall had referred to a new weapon in secret testimony in the MacArthur hearings.

But the senators also said army ordinance representatives who were present denied the existence of such a weapon.

Senator Harry Byrd, who has listened to most of the Marshall testimony, said he had heard no such testimony. Five other senators said the same thing.

Top U.S. military officials several times have projected publicly more powerful atomic weapons, including atomic artillery shells and warheads for guided missiles.

Reserve Clause In Baseball To Be Probed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Monopolies Sub-Committee voted today to investigate organized baseball's "reserve clause."

The reserve clause in player contracts gives a baseball club an option on the player's service in the future after the contract expires. He cannot play elsewhere unless granted a waiver. Chairman Emanuel Celler said the committee investigation also will cover professional football and basketball, and possibly other sports.

He said the inquiry probably will start early in June.

IS GOVERNMENT HOUSE OPEN TO SHIPWORKERS?

Noting the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association conference now was in progress at Government House, executive members of the Victoria Shipyard Workers' Federal Union at a meeting Wednesday night, questioned the use of the Lieutenant-Governor's residence for such a party.

In a letter to the Victoria Daily Times the union said: "We would like to know if the same privileges would be extended to ship repairers of issue to the shipyard work-British Columbia and the courtesies of Government House extended to their wives and friends, should they be in conference here?"

Panama, City Of Dead After Day's Rioting

President Bows To Pressure Of Public

PANAMA (AP)—Ranulfo Arias was overthrown as president of Panama today. He refused to leave his presidential palace and fighting was reported in progress between his supporters and police at the palace.

PANAMA (AP)—President Arnulfo Arias bowed today to police and public pressure and agreed to restore the 1946 constitution which he scrapped last Monday. By the action, he hoped to stay in office with police support.

Arias' decision came after a day and a night of rioting. Three persons were killed and 110 wounded as angry crowds clamored for the President's ouster.

Panama resembled a dead city today in the wake of Wednesday's violence. Few persons ventured on the streets and transportation was at a standstill. Business houses and stores were closed.

The National Assembly, suspended by Arias, met in secret Wednesday night and adopted a resolution impeaching Arias. It swore in Vice-President Alcides Arosemena as President.

The action apparently was nullified when the "strong man" police chief, Col. Jose Antonio Remon, said it had no right to swear in Arosemena since it was technically in recess.

Allies Keep Rolling

Saanich Man Admits 'Cat Burglar' Charge

Phillip Vass Russell, stocky Saanich carpenter and alleged Victoria area "cat burglar," pleaded guilty today to a charge of entering and robbing a Victoria home Nov. 25 1949.

R.C.M.P. meanwhile prepared to lay 22 charges against the 34-year-old defendant in Saanich court and Esquimalt police were to lay three other charges. Saanich police already have laid nine charges of housebreaking and robbery against Russell and more charges are expected to be laid.

Russell is believed by police to be the soft-stepping burglar who for six years prowled Greater Victoria area homes and amassed loot which is valued at $15,000.

Saanich police, who caught Russell in a "lover's lane," and found the loot in the cellar of his home, also nabbed his brother, William Russell, also of Saanich.

The brother faces two charges of unlawfully retaining stolen property. The charges were started today in Saanich court.

William Russell has elected higher court trials. His counsel is George F. Gregory.

TORONTO (CP)—Three armed men today robbed a Royal Bank of Canada branch at nearby Woodbridge of about $5,000.

As they left the bank, they met Jack Watson, manager of a garage, and fired two shots at him. Both missed.

Police said the bandits apparently made careful plans for the robbery, timing their raid for early afternoon when most residents of the village were attending a musical festival.

Allies Continue To Roll Forward; Foe Keeps Hidden

TOKYO (Friday, AP)—Allied forces continued Thursday night to roll back the hard-hitting Reds on the Korean front—a battle which Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said may have started the defeat of Communism's grasp for world power.

Armored patrols stabbed into Munsan, 21 miles northwest of Seoul, after wiping out a Korean Red threat to flank the rubbled Republican capital. Another tank column punched within 10 miles of parallel 38 19 miles north of Seoul and eight miles north of Uijongbu.

Gen. Ridgway said history possibly will record the U.N. action in Korea has broken "the crest of the Communist wave."

Tanks and South Korean infantrymen hunted through Munsan without opposition, then withdrew.

Elsewhere along the 100-mile-wide front the greatest obstacles encountered by probing tank patrols were mine fields covered by small arms fire.

Chinese armies are "willing on the vine" because of lack of supplies, said Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the United States 10th Corps.

The Reds have withdrawn to keep out of range of artillery. Nevertheless, Almond cautioned, they presumably are preparing for another attack.

READY TO KILL
"We are prepared for them," he said. "We are killing large quantities of the enemy and will kill them in the future."

An Eighth Army spokesman said 6,000 North Korean Reds who had threatened to outflank Seoul were either killed or routed.

South Koreans were mopping up remnants of this force Thursday west of the Seoul-Munsan road.

The tank-infantry patrol on the highway ran into no opposition. On a neighboring highway between Uijongbu and the 38th Parallel, another armored force hit a small Chinese screening unit 19 miles north of Seoul.

Other armored forces roamed the central front, reentered Chunchon 45 miles northeast of Seoul, and clanked into Inje on the eastern front without opposition.

(Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Princess Patricia's, reported the Canadians passed an uneventful day Thursday).

The Fifth Air Force reported it still was studying the results of Wednesday's raid on Sinuiju Air Field by 312 U.N. planes but it was clear they inflicted "considerable damage."

HIT RAIL YARDS
American F-86 Sabre jets flew patrol over Sinuiju Thursday, within sight of Russian-type jets parked on an air field across the border in Manchuria. The Red planes remained on the ground.

Today, 275 U.S. Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers struck at rail yards in half a dozen North Korean industrial cities.

In ground actions Wednesday the retreating Reds suffered 2,130 casualties, the U.S. Eighth Army reported.

Simultaneously the Communist radio at Pyongyang said the Reds killed or captured 20,732 U.N. troops between April 22 and April 30—the height of the Communist spring offensive. The Allied command has made no announcement of its losses for that period.

U.N. Delegate Confident Of Joint Victory

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate to the United Nations, today expressed confidence that the U.N. can win the Korean war without sacrificing the unity of the free world.

Austin did not mention Gen. MacArthur, but his statement apparently was aimed at MacArthur's declaration that the U.S. should carry the fight to Red China even if it means going it alone.

In a prepared speech, Austin said political and military considerations are so closely linked in the field of collective security that it is impossible to separate them.

He cited the U.N. victory in Greece as an example of how military and political considerations must be taken together. There, too, Communist troops had operated from a "privileged sanctuary," but the U.N.'s unity of purpose had forced the Communists to withdraw.

Statements By Ridgway Unlike MacArthur's

Marshall Brushes Suggestion Aside

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary George Marshall brushed aside today a suggestion that Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway had made statements of the kind that led to the firing of Gen. MacArthur. He said they were not "parallel."

For the fourth day, Marshall was in the witness chair before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees. They are inquiring into Gen. MacArthur's dismissal and the Korean war policy differences behind it.

At the outset of today's session, Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.-N.J.) quoted a statement made two months ago by Lt. Gen. Ridgway which said "it would be a tremendous victory for the United Nations if the war ended with our forces in control up to the 38th Parallel."

Smith asked if that wasn't the very kind of statement MacArthur has been criticized for making without first clearing it with Washington.

Marshall replied: "I don't think that there is a sufficient of a parallel there, Senator. We have for example had no general public discussions regarding the 38th Parallel so far as the commanders in the field and the government here in Washington are concerned."

"There Ridgway was saying something to the encouragement of his forces."

In advance of today's session, Senator Styles Bridges (R.-N.H.) told reporters he thinks the testimony has shown the Truman administration is attempting to clap a "complete gag" on military field commanders.

In effect, Marshall already has discussed the charge of a gag. He said yesterday that MacArthur was always free to argue with Washington over Korean war policy.

(President Truman today described Defence Secretary George Marshall's testimony on the MacArthur ouster as the exact truth, word for word.)

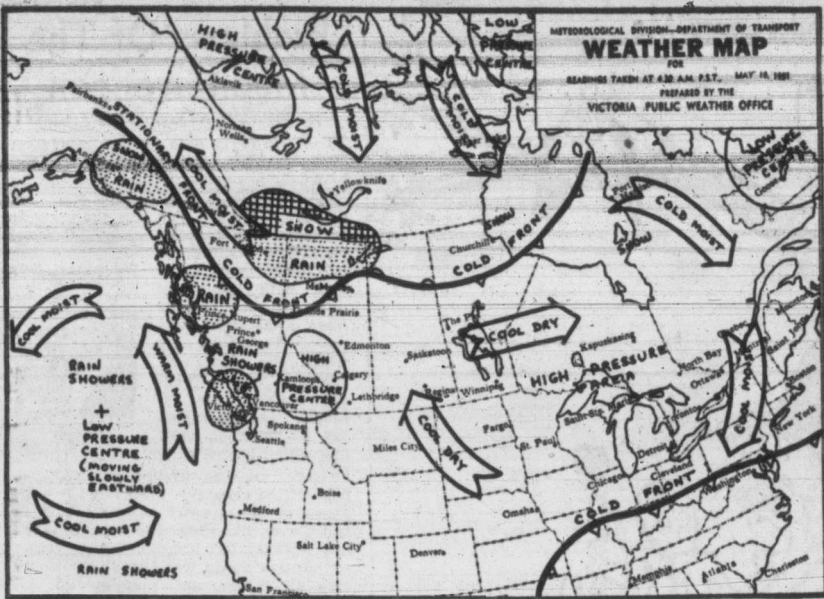

Truman said he is well satisfied with Gen. Marshall's statement of the administration's position.)

5-Cent Papers Back

The nickel which in the past few years has not been sufficient to pay for a chocolate bar or a cup of coffee, is now good for something. Cigarette papers for rollings are selling for five cents, local tobacco stores report.

Sunshine to Date, 1951-718.5 Hours

SYNOPSIS — Showery weather returned to the coastal sections of British Columbia overnight associated with an extensive area of low pressure which is drifting slowly in from the west. In the interior of the province cloudiness increased throughout the night. Shower activity will spread slowly inland during the day reaching the Okanagan region by this evening. No rain is expected in the Kootenays until tomorrow.

Across the Rockies strong northerly winds are driving another outbreak of Polar air southward across the Peace River country where mixed rain and snow today are in sharp contrast to yesterday afternoon's temperatures in the 70's.

BRITAIN MAY REVERSE STAND

TAIPEH (AP)—Foreign and Chinese quarters in Taipei predict Britain will withdraw recognition of Communist China in three to six months.

Britain recognized the Chinese Communist government Jan. 6, 1950. The Reds have not reciprocated.

Official Nationalist quarters declined to say whether the Chinese Nationalist government would accept recognition by Britain if London breaks off relations with Peking. Diplomatic relations between Britain and Nationalist China ceased when London recognized the Reds.

KOREA COAST DRAMA

Four Navies Combine To Aid Sick Canadian

TOKYO (AP)—Naval Lieutenant Michael Barrow of Toronto, stricken with acute appendicitis during operations off Korea, probably owes his life to the combined efforts of warships of four navies.

Barrow was stricken on the Canadian destroyer Huron during a carrier offensive. A navy release today said the other ships that helped out were the British light fleet carrier Glory, the United States light carrier Bataan and the Australian destroyer Warumba.

The Canadian is reported improved in a U.S. Army hospital. Authorities released this story: Barrow became ill while the Huron was in a destroyer screen for the Glory. The Huron's doctor, Surgeon Lt. William Cooke of Toronto, recommended Barrow's removal to the Glory, where better facilities were available.

A rigging was set up and the patient sent across in a stretcher to the Glory. There, Surgeon Lt. B. Crawford of London operated successfully, but two days later Barrow suffered a relapse. He became dangerously ill. The Glory's principal medical officer, Surgeon Cmdr. J. H. Mitchell, flew in a helicopter to the Bataan for consultation with Lt. J. McBride of the U.S. Army Medical Corps.

They decided to rush Barrow to hospital ashore. Again Barrow was placed in a stretcher. This time he was transferred to the Warumba. The Australian destroyer proceeded to the base at full speed, and Barrow was removed to the army hospital.

MORE SHOWERS PREDICTED FOR VICTORIA AREA

Victoria area can expect showers this week as long as a weather disturbance 500 miles out to sea continues to push moist air eastward, the weather forecaster said today. The sky would be generally cloudy, though there would be sunny intervals, he said.

Farmers welcomed today the reports of showery weather as additional rain, they said, would push ahead their crops retarded by the April drought. Those depending on the tourist trade, however, were a bit glum.

Polio Victim Said Cured By 'Higher Work'

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—The Melbourne Argus today published an interview with a 21-year-old poliomyelitis victim who said she received a lightning cure by prayer.

Former nurse Joan Westblade said she felt a movement in the paralyzed muscles on her right side as she prayed before a statue of Our Lady of Fatima, April 25. "I did not dare believe I was cured. Somehow I got up..."

"When my two sisters saw me walking the three of us cried with joy," Joan, daughter of a farmer, said she now can do "Anything I ever could. I have been riding horses and even doing work on the farm."

The doctor who had been treating her told The Argus: "I am only a doctor. This seems higher than our work. Joan's case was a bad one."

"Three days before her cure she took the iron off her right leg and the leg crumpled under the slightest pressure she put on it," her father said.

30,000 Homeless In Salvador Quake

Latest Figures Show 400 Dead And 700 Injured; Toll May Be Greater

Operations Back To Normal After Paint Co. Fire

Some phases of operation at British America Paint Company's Belleville Street paint works were held up today as a result of Friday afternoon's flash fire which made a raging inferno of the plant's main heating room.

Company officials were hopeful this afternoon, however, that production would be back close to normal by Friday. While final estimates have yet to be made, plant spokesmen thought the total damage bill would be not much higher than $1,000.

The fire broke out when 300 gallons of linseed oil ignited while being heated in preparation for mixing with paint pigment. The oil threw up a scorching flame. Two workmen, Pat Lawson, 954 Cowichan Street, and his helper, Ken Murphy, 2615 Asquith, ran to safety.

City firemen treated the call from the plant as a major alarm. Five fire trucks and three cars took 20 men to the scene. Hose was laid from three different hydrants as well as from pump trucks.

Two lines of hose were strung from a hydrant at Belleville and Pendry, nearly a quarter of a mile from the fire.

Firemen, directed by Deputy Fire Chief Frank Briars, used water and chemicals to fight the blaze. Fire Chief Robert Brindle supervised the operation.

An inspection of the plant today showed little damage done to the heavy metal furnaces inside the building. All electric wiring was destroyed, however, and the main, metal safety door to the building, which proved its worth during the fire, was written off as being beyond repair.

Terrific heat within the building produced some deep cracks in the brick wall which will require attention before the building is used again.

Mother Deserts Crippled Child

SEATTLE (AP)—A young mother admitted today that she abandoned her three-year-old spastic son in a suburban market. And the county prosecutor said she told him:

"I'll go to jail the rest of my life rather than take him back."

The mother, Mrs. Audrey Williams, 24, and her husband, Lawrence, were charged with abandonment.

"I just can't keep him any longer," Mrs. Williams said. "He is too much of a problem. He has been the reason for many family quarrels, and has caused us to be evicted from several homes."

"I love my boy but I cannot take care of him," she said.

No Request By Gen. Ike For More British Troops

PARIS (Reuters)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Atlantic Pact Commander, has made no specific request to Britain for an increased contribution to the Atlantic Pact army, a spokesman at his headquarters said today.

The purpose of Eisenhower's visit to Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Norway, the spokesman said, had been to persuade them to increase their armed forces.

But no specific request had been made to Britain, since war minister Emmanuel Shinwell pledged four divisions before the end of 1951.

Shinwell, reviewing British troops at Sennelager, West Germany, April 27, had promised Eisenhower more men if he wanted them.

There had been reports that Eisenhower asked Britain for additional troops but had been turned down.

Five high court judges today dismissed his application for a writ of prohibition against his conviction and sentence.

Who Will Pay The Bill?

IN PURE PRINCIPLE THE WIDE-spread objection to increased sales and excise taxes is unanswerable. All such taxes are unfair, disregard ability to pay and bear equally on rich and poor. But in practical politics the objection to the alternative of a greatly-increased income tax probably is unanswerable also.

Through increases in sales and excise taxes the Federal Government hopes to raise $235 millions a year. Through a 20 per cent increase in personal income tax it hopes to raise $158 millions. If the total yield of $393 millions were to come out of income tax, the present rates would have to be increased about 50 per cent.

Would the Canadian people prefer to have their income taxes raised by a half than to pay part of the cost invisibly, through the price of goods? The Government of Canada evidently thinks not and doubtless it is right. Invisible taxes, in small individual sums, are always easier to collect than large sums in visible taxes.

The Government believes, moreover, that the income tax—except in case of war—has reached a breaking point, beyond which it would encounter the law of diminishing returns. That is to say, when working people see the tax collector taking much of their income for the last day of the week's work, they will be tempted to work shorter hours and escape the final impost. Visible taxes, after the breaking point, destroy incentive to produce and thus can be inflationary, when their purpose is the opposite. Invisible sales taxes—human nature being what it is—do not have this effect.

An even deeper logic is at work in the present taxation changes. Through sales taxes on the ordinary goods of commerce the state is tapping the lower and middle income brackets for revenue because, for practical purposes, it has already taken all it can get from the higher brackets.

The bulk of the money needed to finance the present cost of government lies in the smaller brackets, as is proved by the reports of the Department of National Revenue. Anyone who doubts that is invited to study the department's annual green book.

Since most of the nation's income goes to the people of modest earnings, who make up most of the population, it is they who will mainly pay the state's bills. One way or another they must be taxed more heavily. The new taxes, aimed largely at these income brackets, deny once again the fallacy that government services can be provided by the rich, without cost to anyone else. Whether he pays openly through income taxes, or invisibly through sales taxes, the ordinary Canadian, for the most part, must pay the shot.

Growing Trees And Men

WITH ACADEMIC STUDIES BEHIND them for the scholastic year, college and university students are reaching the labor market this week looking for seasonal employment until they return to classes in September. At least part of that group will be absorbed by the British Columbia Forest Service in what an official describes as "man-sized jobs drawing man-sized pay."

Preferred as applicants will be those young men who are studying forestry and who may use their experience in the woods as field work for later co-relation with theory. Surveys and inventories will be carried out by them, along with forestry work of a nature requiring a measure of maturity.

Of scarcely less significance than this utilization of British Columbia abilities in British Columbia industry will be the continued application of what the service calls its "Youth Use" program, starting in July and open to a number of teenagers coming out of high school for summer holidays. The scheme was originally devised partly as a measure of social importance—to provide useful employment for boys who might otherwise find time on their hands—and partly as a means of harnessing young energies to necessary forestry projects.

Results of earlier experiments have more than confirmed the faith of its authors in the plan. Experience revealed that while the department hoped to get at least 50 cents worth of work out of every dollar spent, crediting the other 50 cents towards social effort, the boys have been giving a full 100 cents on the dollar for the pay they received.

Their activities vary. Some are allotted to trail making, others to park work, some to preparation of seedling farms. Initiative and self-reliance are encouraged and efforts are made to see that the boys achieve a sense of accomplishment. On the record, the double objective has been reached. Projects have been completed of material public benefit and the boys have been assisted in the type of character development which outdoor living and work in the woods can do inspire.

The tree is growing straight under the B.C. Forest Service's program. The allocation of $60,000 for it this year bears the stamp of a gilt-edged investment.

Index Of B.C. Progress

BECAUSE CANADA'S ECONOMY DEPENDS so largely on trade for its health, Victoria's Home Products Fair will not suggest to our citizens that they should confine their purchasing only to goods represented in it. In order to sell to other countries we must buy from them. At the same time, the exhibits do indicate to our people the strides British Columbia is taking in the march toward greater industrial strength.

This province traces its development from the time when its importance rested solely on its wealth in raw materials. The furs that drew early traders here were taken from creatures of the wilds. For many years after settlements were established, our wealth was shipped out in its raw state. From the materials we supplied, other countries produced the manufactured articles which we and other peoples throughout the trading world bought.

How far we have come from that start is indicated in the fair now in progress. Where we once exported little more than raw logs, we now have finished manufactured products, furniture and other consumer goods ready for sale to the ultimate user. Some of them are on view at the arena.

Other refinements in the use of our resources are also displayed, indicating, in part, the manner in which progress has been made in British Columbia not only to help meet domestic needs, but to produce for export.

The post-war years have seen a surge in British Columbia manufacture. That has helped to open up the country, though industry has been largely centred in the lower portion of the province and on the seaboard. It has provided jobs for an increased population and has converted potentials into real wealth.

At the fair now in progress are some of the examples of British Columbia's ability to accomplish this transformation. Interesting in themselves as exhibits, they furnish an index of industrial and manufacturing advances still to come. That is a story of primary interest to every citizen in this province and Canada.

The Lesson Not Learned?

A SMALL NEWS ITEM FROM GERMANY a few weeks ago told of a citizen who went to a masquerade dressed as Hitler. Complete with uniform, moustache and strut, he cut quite a figure. But the astonishing thing to western observers was his reception in various public places. The report said that in restaurants which he visited, women rushed forward to kiss him; men crowded around to shake his hand; people stood and cheered on his arrival; orchestras struck up the Horst Wessel Song (officially banned in Germany) and other old Nazi tunes. The net effect, no matter how, that hilarious spirit, was as though the Fuehrer himself had returned to visit an admiring populace.

The incident comes to mind on reading the latest election returns from Lower Saxony. There a new Nazi-like organization has made an impressive showing at the polls, winning 11 per cent of the votes and 16 seats in the 159-member Parliament on its first bid for support. The new party is so much like the old NSDAP that the Western German Government is attempting to have it outlawed. Its rough tactics during the election campaign were reminiscent of those employed by Hitler's bully-boys. Its 6,000 members are regimented and organized in much the same manner. It is openly pledged to "restore the many good features of Nazism."

Encountered little more than five years after the end of the war that defeated Hitler and turned back his bid for world domination through his so-called super race, this is a saddening trend. There still exist over 6,000 persons in Germany who would wish to flaunt the old Nazi beliefs and implement the programs of the Nuremberg era as hard as they can. But the evidence seems incontrovertible. And when one considers the close similarity between the totalitarianism of Nazism and that of Communism, the path of Germany's development to political adulthood appears still strewn with many pitfalls and difficulties.

Sweden's Experiment In Inflation

IF SWEDEN CAN DEMONSTRATE the effects of inflation by permitting one round, and one round only, of the wage-price spiral to take place, the Scandinavian country may have achieved an impressive means of informing its people of the dangers of such economic cycles. According to Reuters, the Social-Democratic Government has announced. It has accompanied that action by announcing an increase in state-controlled prices. The suggestion in the news story is that Swedish workers now have more money with which to pay higher prices for goods they bought cheaper when their wages were less.

In the process, as was inevitable, some classes who did not benefit from the removal of wage freezing, have suffered. However, if the experiment can be limited to a single performance, some readjustment may have been accomplished to allow the workers a better return for their labors at the expense of people with fixed incomes and of those who received no concessions.

What must be apparent to the Swedes, however, is the lesson which has been driven home in Canada. Manipulation of money, through higher wages and higher prices, does not solve the problem of production. Until enough goods are produced to meet all demands, prices cannot be expected to fall.

Rearmament in Sweden, as elsewhere, must appropriate materials which otherwise could go into consumer goods. Impartial observers in that country predict belt-tightening for the nation, whatever experiments are made with money.

At this distance the chief value of the Swedish Government's action appears to be one of warning. It should help to prove that people are no better off with higher wages if the increases cause an equivalent rise in the cost of living. The danger seems to be that inflation, once started, is not easily stopped.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

IF MY OLD EYES didn't deceive me, I saw a letter on this page a while ago about poor old Nature's animals being rudely forced into most unnatural circus tricks and stunts. Well, if you animal-lovers will just stop snarling and biting for a moment, I'd like to make a few human remarks. Though you'll have to forgive me for using English... it's the only tongue I've fallen into the habit of using since I stopped barking and miaowing (or mewling... I even forget how to spell cat-talk, it is so long since I have chatted with any cat with a gift of conversation).

The first thing I want to say is that most animals love showing off. And therefore you couldn't possibly put them in a more heavenly place than a circus. They are (God forgive them) nasty little exhibitionists, always doing stunts. Mighty rotten stunts, I admit, but still stunts. They like dressing up as people, and even thinking of themselves as people. They think show-biz is romantic. If they could talk sub-English, they would also think the word "show-biz" was a real word, and romantic in itself. That's animals for you.

THE NEXT thing I'd like to say, on this beastly and devil-given afternoon, is that animals are gregarious. They enjoy promiscuous in gangs. That is why they like parades as every bawdyguy knows, all dogs want to follow a parade, and get into the middle of it, and take over from the pipe-major. That's dogs for you... barbarians, every one of them.

Finally, I would like to observe that if it is cruel to put a few giraffes and elephants into a circus, how much more cruel it must be to put live clowns and ringmasters into a circus from which they cannot escape. With my own eyes I have seen caged lion-tamers, obviously suffering badly from delusions of grandeur. I have seen trapeze artists (female as well as male) strung high on ropes. And very unnatural they looked, too. Their poor painted faces were distorted with strain. The contortions they went into were anything else but natural.

AS FOR the clowns, they were a travesty of human life. A degrading spectacle all round. The only creatures that looked more or less at home were the animals. They obviously loved it. And that gives you a fair estimate of the circus... anyone who loves it is either an animal or a halfwit such as Picasso or Lautrec or Dame Laura Knight. Or a kid. I have said some mighty bitter things about animals in my time, but this is the first occasion on which I have equated them with children. However, it is time somebody did it, and it looks as if I'm going to be the goat. You know goats? Even goats are animals, just like me.

THAT'S BARS IN THEM THAR HOMES I AM AMUSED by the modern habit of constructing a bar in some deep cavern of the old homestead. Does this mean you are not allowed to drink in the library or the living room? What a very puritan notion! And if you are going to run a bar in a private home, why don't you build a little cigar-stand and a little cute check-room as well, and otherwise convert the house into a hotel? You could even have bell-hops.

ROUND AND ROUND IT GOES A FAMOUS Canadian mail-order house has a thing known as its "revolving credit plan." And very nice, too. If there's anything I like to see credit doing, it's to see it revolving... it seems fairer to everyone that way... first it whirls right and then it whirls left, and round and round it goes, till even the chartered accountants get dizzy and pass up and go home, thus saving money for all. In a better world, all credit will revolve. But just now, with only some of the guys going in for sideways credit or retroactive credit, things tend to get all mixed up. And I'll tell you who got most mixed up of all. It was a friend of mine who phoned this mail-order house and said "I want to inquire about your revolving credit."

SOAK THE WRETCH I SEE THAT British publishers have suggested the best way to offset rising book prices. It is to pay the authors less. Another good way would be to kill the authors off entirely, and then nobody would have to spend a penny on books. However, if an author can exist without money (as this new theory suggests), then maybe books can exist without authors.

POEMS FROM THE OUTER MONGOLIAN, No. 129

IN THE DAYS when wars were filled the world. And mah-root was rationed. The anarchist Gung told his friend Chew Doy: "I can get you all the mah-root you like." "Can you get me a thoughtful of you," said Chew Doy. "Permit me to pay you thrice its value." Gung was incensed. "Do you think that I would take money for cheating the government?" It is a duty and a pleasure, Chew Doy. Put away those disgusting coins. Before you insult me."

Milk By The Hic-Cup

London Free Press

HIGH marks for ingenuity should be given Mrs. E. Hahn and her colleagues of the Housewives' Consumer Association for proposing to Premier Frost of Ontario that liquor profits be used to subsidize the retail price of milk.

Once upon a time it was accepted that if the father drank liquor the chances of the children having enough milk were small. The new proposal would neatly reverse this. The drinker of hard stuff would be performing a patriotic service and the more he imbued the more would be available to subsidize milk for children.

Governments have gone quite a long way in sumptuary legislation designed to keep people from doing things the authorities regard as harmful, and encouraging them to do things considered beneficial. This would be a logical extension of the process.

VOICE AND MIND

In line with the subject of "the monotonous, parrot sound which fills the air of this era one listens for a human voice attached to a human mind," contained in Loose Ends, April 30, the following indicates something of the same idea, and how long it is lasting:

The genius of the age consists in our excelling in the power of imagination, and in our rational mind being merely passive and reactive in respect to the objects that come in through the external senses. On the other hand, the activity of the rational mind, and its resistance to the affections of the animus, that is to say, its exercise of a dominating power, is not esteemed at this day as a token of character, and scarcely as a token of judgment.

VIVISECTION

In Dr. Jordan's article on vivisection he states that "animals are not tortured... when painful procedures have to be applied they are given anaesthetics." In the United States there are no laws compelling public record of vivisection experiments, but we know that it has reached larger proportions than in England, where, in 1948, the Home Office revealed that 1,530,417 experiments upon living animals were performed, and over 90 per cent were done without anaesthetics.

No one needs to have any uncertainty as to whether animals are "tortured" or not; in medical journals they may read (if they can stand it) reports of the appalling experiments performed, over the signatures of the doctors who performed them. There are many experiments where, according to the vivisectioners, an anaesthetic would interfere with their observation of reactions on the part of the animals.

Many doctors now state openly that animal experimentation has led them astray, and that, as diseased conditions in man cannot be correctly imitated in experimental animals, the most absurd and hopelessly valueless experiments are often performed.

Although the so-called "dirt" diseases are fast disappearing on account of better sanitary and living conditions, why are so many incurable diseases prevalent today, many of them on the increase, if vivisection has the value claimed for it by medical research workers, as millions of animals have been and are being sacrificed for the supposed good of humanity—as if good ever could come out of evil?

APPEASEMENT

Ever since the Munich Conference the word "appeasement" has been in disrepute and today is regarded as synonymous with cowardly yielding. Yet if we look through history we shall find that appeasement has often brought good results, and that Christianity itself is based upon it.

The Roman conquerors appeased the vanquished by giving them roads, law and civilization and their Empire lasted longer than any before or since. Coming down much further, the Crimean War was brought to a close when the so-called victors handed back to Russia the fort of Sebastopol that it had taken so long to capture, and from that day to this, so far at least there has been no war between Britain and France on one side and Russia on the other.

Many of us can well remember how the British Government appeased the Boers after the South African War and the subsequent loyalty to the Empire of leaders like Joubert and Smuts. There are many other instances but these are sufficient to show that appeasement may often do more to avert war than indulgence in provocative threats of the MacArthur type.

Restrictions On Canadians

The Financial Post

THE OTHER day a man who had been a successful master electrician in Hamilton for 16 years applied for a license to carry on his trade in Toronto. He was refused. To start his business within the sacred precincts of Ontario's capital this man would have to start all over again. He would have to pass a journeyman's test then wait two years before he could apply for the master's certificate.

It didn't make a bit of difference how much skill this man possessed or how much electrical work was waiting to be done in Toronto. Under the restrictive licensing system set up in Toronto he was barred from getting work and that was exactly the purpose of the regulations. They were devised to prevent competition of fellow Canadians who happened to have been trained outside Toronto. They don't result in any better standards of work in Toronto but they do help to keep the cost of such work unnecessarily high.

And that sort of thing is going on all over Canada.

Hundreds of cities and towns are passing regulations of various sorts to bar the services and goods of other cities and towns. They pretend to believe that this is good citizenship and good business. It is neither. It is simply playing favorites—and that has always been a costly business.

Bringing It Closer To Home

Christian Science Monitor

WHEN SO AMAZINGLY many people in prominent places are shown to have such spectacularly low standards, the individual citizen—a pretty decent sort of fellow, on the whole—is apt to feel pretty aggrieved and pretty helpless about it all. Something ought to be done, he fulminates. But what can "I" do?

At least one thing "I" can do is to stop blaming it all on those fellows in Washington or those politicians of the local machine, and start distributing the villainy a little closer to home.

What about the traffic fine John Q. Citizen had "fixed" a while back? What about that little item Mrs. John Q. "forgot" to add to her income tax return? What about John Q. Jr.'s casual patronage of the slot machines? What about Auntie Q.'s smart manoeuvre in getting that expensive perfume past the customs inspector? What about Uncle Q.'s quiet but powerful pressure to have the city parking lot located where it would do the greatest good to his business?

But all these things are so commonplace, murmurs the pretty decent average citizen. Really? What would the big-time operators do without John Q. Jr.'s coins in the slot machine? And is it really so much more venal an offence to take than to offer a bribe—or should we say a "favor"? Personally, we think Auntie Q.'s undeclared Paris perfume might smell just as bad to a moralist from Mars as today's headlines.

Here is an area where the ordinary citizen is far from helpless. To sharpen individual conscience is to give a cutting edge to protests against public laxity and corruption.

Problems Of The Mediterranean

By JOSEPH ALSOP from Athens

IT IS EASY to sum up the impression of American policy-making that is left by a tour in the Middle East and Eastern Mediterranean. Evidently the men who make national policy are like distracted cooks confronting an enormous stove covered with dozens of differing pots, all bubbling away simultaneously. The cooks only watch the most conspicuous pots—Western Europe, for example. The other pots get no attention until they either scorch or boil over.

Joseph

Even from the perspective of Athens, it is all too clear that Iran must now be placed in the category of pots that have boiled over, like China in the past. When this reporter left Tehran, the American and British motto was that "time would cure all things, and that in time an agreed settlement of the oil nationalization issue could be arranged with the Iranian government." Even then, it seemed that time was more likely to produce an explosion than a settlement.

The explosion has now occurred with the political triumph of the National Front leader, Dr. Mohammed Mussadeh, an aged extremist who lives in a private world of violent dreams.

SOVIET DEAL

There are signs that Dr. Mussadeh is contemplating a deal with the Soviet Union, and that the Shah, the only relatively stable element in Iranian politics, is again planning to flee. Certainly it is childishly unrealistic to talk about "negotiating" with Dr. Mussadeh, as Foreign Secretary Morrison has been talking. A minor disaster is the best result that can now be hoped for from the long neglected Iranian situation; a major disaster, engulfing all the vital region of the Middle East, is all too possible.

Meanwhile, the situation in the Eastern Mediterranean is clearly in the other category, of pots that neglect will cause to scorch. At present, the opportunity still exists to tie the Greek, Turkish and Yugoslav armies into the Western security system.

But it is troublesome to do what is really necessary in order to exploit this great opportunity—to offer the Yugoslavs a sensible and adequate program of arms-aid, and to give the Turks and Greeks the guarantees they want against aggression.

Moreover, there is the crucial problem of the Mediterranean command. Until recently, it was thoroughly taken for granted that Admiral Robert Carney would be the Mediterranean commander of the future. Carney even journeyed to Ankara and Athens to discuss liaison arrangements. If Admiral Carney were given the Mediterranean command, he could easily tie in the N.A.T.O. area in the Western Mediterranean with this area in the Eastern Mediterranean. A British commander, for various local reasons of prejudice and sentiment, can not possibly wield the same authority.

SHORT SIGHTED

But the American Chiefs of Staff, with unparalleled short sightedness, accepted the Atlantic command for Admiral William Fehleler. As the British Chiefs of Staff must have realized at that time, this made it inevitable that a British appointment would be regarded as "only fair" here in the Mediterranean. And it is also troublesome to disentangle this silly mess, and name a British commander in the Atlantic and an American commander in the Mediterranean.

Because of the search for an easy way out, the command problem is fumbled; the Turkish and Greek requests for guarantees are met with empty words; and the Yugoslavs are "aided" in dribbles. Thus, the opportunity here is passing. If suspicion and disgust increase much further in Belgrade; if neutrals gain much ground at Ankara, the opportunity will simply cease to exist.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"I SEE," said the Elevator Man, "where somebody in London's been having trouble with a cat. It seems the feline, a black one named Smokey, got herself lodged in a chimney, and it took a lot of work to get her out."

Finally a Humane Society man rigged up an arrangement with a sack and a rope and out came pussy. But here was the catch. They no sooner had her safely down on the ground than she jumped away, skittered up on the roof again and hopped right down the chimney. The rescue job had to be done all over again. Something about the chimney seemed to soothe her. Going down!

"In a case like that," said the Elevator Man, "human beings grin and say, 'What a stupid cat. It no sooner gets helped out of trouble than it plunges right back in.' And we all look wise and superior. But the fact is, most of us are like that cat. We get ourselves into fixes, we get out one way or another, and then we plump right back in again and yell for help. How many fellas who've lost the rent money at the races and sworn they'd never go near the track again have been found there some time later—losing the rent money? How many young bucks who've fallen in love and been aided out of it have fallen right back in again? How many nations who've blustered themselves into an aggressive war against their neighbors and been soundly trounced have tried to start the same old shenanigans all over again? When you come to face it, a lot of us spend our whole lives falling down chimneys of one kind or another and being hauled up again. We can't seem to help being cat. Lower main!

"Of course," said the Elevator Man, "some people take precautions against a repetition of trouble. I like that old story about the couple who used to do a lot of neighborhood borrowing. 'My dear,' says the husband, 'when I returned Mr. Jones' lawnmower with the blade broken he swore at me.' 'We mustn't let that sort of thing happen again,' says the wife. 'You'd better borrow from the vicar next time.'"

No Registration Of Manpower--Claxton

Full Information Already At Hand But Survey May Be Made Later

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton indicated Wednesday that he feels there is no need for a national registration of the country's manpower at the present time. Replying in the Commons to opposition demands for an appraisal of the country's manpower resources, Mr. Claxton said appraisals made for a special purpose can soon become out of date.

He added: "The Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Department of Labor have continuous appraisals, and I have been told that from most points of view the information they have is quite adequate for statistical planning with regard to manpower in this country."

"To have a further survey for this purpose may be desirable, and it may be done. That matter is being considered by the advisory committee on manpower."

But the information so far put before me from the point of view of planning—and we have planned it out for several years ahead—is that the information is fully available on which to do the job."

Mr. Claxton spoke during debate on his record $1,600,000,000 defence budget for this fiscal year. He replied to suggestions and accusations thrown at the government.

Noting that Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C., Nanaimo) had charged that Canada's present method of recruiting is "haphazard," Mr. Claxton said:

Recruiting Plan Working

"It is felt that the present system is working as well as anything we could devise. There is no evidence whatever that we are taking on men who should be engaged in industry. In point of fact we are not taking on as great a portion of tradesmen as we would like to have."

"This matter is thoroughly worked out."

Turning to other matters, Mr. Claxton said Canada regrets the "failure" to standardize Western arms and added that the most discouraging factor is that the United Kingdom and the United States can't even see eye to eye on arms they are adopting for the future.

He disclosed that the Defence Department has been looking for five years for a huge area—100 miles by 30—large enough to train army formations as large as a brigade. It has its eye on one in the East, but it is hoped that brigades ticketed for overseas won't have to do winter training in Canada because much of the time would be spent shoveling snow.

Canada To Get Patton Tanks

The United States kept Canada's Special Force 25th Brigade at Fort Lewis, Wash., for $20,000 a day or $2.46 a man—cheaper than Canada could have done it herself. Canada would have had to spend millions to rehabilitate a camp to handle the training of the brigade, now in Korea.

Canada, he said, will be getting the most modern United States tanks—Pattons—among the equipment being sent here to replace the two divisions of British-type equipment sent to Europe.

Referring to the Royal Canadian Navy, Mr. Claxton said it will be late this Autumn before the first of Canada's new anti-submarine escort vessels are launched, and it will be a "considerable time" longer before they are at sea. Plans to produce them were announced more than a year ago.

HOME GARDEN

Leaf-rollers or leaf-tiers, appear to be the home gardener's headache this week. Judging from the number of questions received during the past few days, this type of pest is general all over the city and may possibly be more evident than in recent years.

There are 14 different leaf-rollers considered as common pests on this continent, of which four or five prefer the climate of the Pacific Northwest.

Some limit their sphere of activity to one type of plant, while others are not so definite.

Hilda, in their preferences. The fruit tree leaf-roller (Archips argyrospila) includes fruit and forest trees, vegetables, and herbaceous plants in its list of victims.

On examining the curled leaves we find that the edges have been drawn together by a fine strand of web, and within this shelter a green caterpillar (or worm) is gorging itself on the leaf tissues, safe from the dangers of birds or sprays.

Pinching the leaves between the thumb and finger is the most effective way to destroy the pest at this stage. Earlier in the year control is gained by a dormant-oil spray, or by an arsenical spray as the leaves unfold in spring.

The latter may still have some effect if used immediately, especially on those types which travel to new leaves when the present food supply is exhausted. Spraying at this time presents certain problems, however. The pollination of fruit blossoms may be affected and early maturing fruits may retain a poisonous residue, as will crops of radish, spinach, or lettuce on which the spray may fall. The gardener must therefore be governed by his own conditions.

School Children Visit Home Products Exhibit

Hundreds of school children today were familiarized with the diversity and quality of products manufactured in British Columbia at the B.C. Products Fair at the Memorial Arena.

The fair, now in its third day, has been visited by a total of 9,418 persons. Attendance Wednesday was compared with 3,600 Tuesday.

Yarrows Launch Barge

There will be no ceremony or fanfare tonight when Yarrows Ltd. launches the new, big steel barge completed for Vancouver Towboat Company at the shipbuilding firm's Esquimalt yard.

The barge will be sent into the water at 8:30.

One hundred and fifty feet long and 42 feet wide, the barge will be towed to Vancouver tomorrow to be put in service carrying hog fuel and oil.

77 Suspensions In N.Y. Police Force

Accused By Grand Jury Of Taking Bookie's Cash In 'Bushel Baskets'

NEW YORK (UP)—Mass suspensions rocked New York City's undermanned police department today in a fast follow-up of indictments accusing cops of collecting "bushel baskets" of bribe money from a $20,000,000-a-year gambling combine.

New Pack Of Canned Goods Shows Increase

Victoria food wholesalers say the public will have to pay more for the new season's pack of fish, vegetables and fruits. "The packers have informed us that their prices will be raised," said the manager of one of Victoria's biggest wholesale outlets.

The new prices will become effective by degrees. Normally the first of the new canning pack is asparagus, and supplies of this vegetable will begin to come on the market within the next four or five weeks. After that the canners proceed through the summer as the vegetables and fruits mature.

Apex, from the canning threat, there is little change in the general commodity price level. A recent exception has been the maker of a popular line of soups. This firm has steeply raised the its canned and bottled goods containing tomatoes.

"There is very little good news these days for the housewife," said the Victoria dealer. "The brightest tidings are that fresh vegetables are gradually creeping down to their normal spring and summer levels."

Nineteen of 77 active or former members of the force were told to post bail ranging from $2,500 to $7,500 by today or go to jail on conspiracy charges involving a $1,000,000 protection payoff by gamblers.

Two other accused members of Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy's force were out of town and charged in absentia.

Murphy, who became commissioner after prosecuting Alger Hiss as U.S. attorney here, ordered the greatest shake-up in his department's history only a few hours after a Brooklyn grand jury indicted 21 men and cited 56 other policemen and other cops as conspirators.

He removed 32 active defendants and co-conspirators from duty without pay, including assistant Chief Inspector John J. Travers, the No. 2 man on the force.

Assistant Kings County District Attorney Julius Helfand, who opened the grand jury's sealed indictment, said police had collected money by the "bushel baskets" from bookie Harry Gross during the regime of former Mayor William O'Dwyer.

TRUMAN SAYS ACHESON SAFE

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman said again today there is no foundation for reports State Secretary Dean Acheson is going to leave his cabinet and that he is going to recall Ambassador William O'Dwyer from Mexico. The Senate crime investigating committee severely criticized O'Dwyer's conduct as Mayor of New York.

Hints C.N.R. Be Tried For Fatal Wreck

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—The manslaughter trial of Alfred John Atherton opened here Wednesday with the suggestion by his defence counsel that perhaps the Canadian National Railway should be facing prosecution.

Atherton, 22-year-old telegrapher, was charged following the Canoe River train wreck in British Columbia last November 21, in which 21 lives were lost when two trains collided.

He is alleged to have relayed a message incorrectly, resulting in the crash, and is charged in the death of Henry Proskunk, fireman aboard the troop train involved.

While defence counsel John Diefenbaker was cross-examining a witness, Col. Eric Pepler, Deputy Attorney-General, objected to searching questions regarding use of wooden cars, saying: "The C.N.R. is not on trial here, it is the poor man in the box."

Mr. Diefenbaker replied: "Perhaps the C.N.R. should be."

Psychiatrists Urge Furlough For Sanity

By FRANK CAREY

CINCINNATI (AP)—Home furloughs after 18 months in a combat zone were suggested today as a possible means of preventing many mental breakdowns among United States fighting men.

Two doctors told the American Psychiatric Association: "The fact that a large number (of Second World War psychiatric cases) broke down after they had been overseas for some time may indicate that... the army should attempt to return soldiers after some set period of time, such as 18 months."

"Knowing that there is to be an escape from the strain of an unusual setting after a definite period of time may serve as a goal and be a stimulus to enduring hardship."

Drs. Herbert S. Ripley of the University of Washington and Stewart G. Wolf of Cornell described an analysis of 100 soldiers suffering from schizophrenia—"split personality."

Some of their findings:

1. Many of the men were probably of a schizophrenic type in civilian life, but probably would have been all right if they hadn't entered the army.

2. Some schizophrenics may even make good soldiers because of their mental illness. The emotional "blunting" experienced may make them stand up under a high degree of combat danger.

3. The factor which seemed most conducive to promoting a good adjustment to life after discharge was "a warm, tolerant, helpful attitude on the part of a wife or other member of the family."

The word bedlam, meaning a scene of uproar and confusion, is a shortened form of the word Bethlehem.

To Resume Inquiry

Inquiry being conducted by Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan into the Workmen's Compensation Act will be resumed at the Court House in Victoria on Monday, and will continue there until further notice. It was learned today it is planned to receive briefs not yet submitted, with a view to completing the hearings.

Experts have found that the famous medieval tr the "Court Linda," of Nuenstadt, Germany, with its branches supported by 30 stone pillars, is 1,200 years old this year, dating from the days of Charlemagne, reports the German tourist office.

Coleman's Column

By JIM COLEMAN

(If Rip Van Finkel slept 25 years and then came down from the hills, to view the Canadian sports scene.)
Hmmm! Must have overslept this morning. Funny taste in my mouth—feels as if a family of falcons had just moved out. That'll teach me to go bowling with those circus midgits. I didn't see any of them around when I woke up so the show must have moved on to St. Catharines. I wonder what drugstore they got that stuff from? It tasted like drano.

Cheer—I seem to have forgotten the date. It must be summer, though, because I can hear the kids playing in the streets. I'll just turn on the radio while I'm dressing. Hmmm—there's some band playing Dixieland. It was nice music a few years back but it'll never last. There's a news broadcast. MacArthur? Truman? Who are those guys? I'd better hurry down and get a paper and find out what's been happening around here.

Coleman

Sumpin' Like Soccer Season Here

There's a slight pause, at this juncture, for local station announcements. When we tune in again, Rip Van Finkel has purchased a newspaper, returned to his room and perused the journal carefully. Visibly shaken, he drops the paper and lights a reefer. He rubs his hands through his hair before he begins to mutter to himself querulously.)

May 10, 1951. There's something screwy about this whole business. Though t three papers and they all carry the same date. But, here's May they're playing HOCKEY. They can't kid me with that kind of stuff. I know that hockey is a WINTER sport. Who ever heard of any one playing hockey in the middle of May? When do they start the hockey season? It used to get going about the beginning of December and the boys were through by the end of March. The hockey players all would be selling pari-mutual tickets at the race tracks by now.

And, what's this stuff about the junior teams playing a seven-game series for the Memorial Cup? That's always been strictly a two-game series with total goals deciding the winner. The papers say that they have to play a seven-game series so that the junior teams can meet the playoffs. I always thought that the juniors played simply for the glory.

Yed, They're Still Around

I can't seem to remember any of these hockey names. That fellow Smythe, for instance, who seems to have so much to say. The only Smythe I can remember was some young whippersnapper who was forming a team for New York and then was replaced by Lester Patrick. I wonder whatever became of Patrick and Art Ross and Cecil Hart and Leo Dandurand? They're writing about the 70-game schedule in the National Hockey League. Migawd, hockey teams couldn't possibly play a 70-game schedule. The only player left skating at the end of the year would be Nels Stewart who spends all his time leaning on the other team's net.

They seem to have the same teams in baseball. Come to think of it they haven't changed anything in baseball for years unless someone has invented a square ball. But those names confuse me. I didn't see anything in those papers about The Babe or Ken Williams or Speaker or Cobb.

That must be the same Casey Stengel who's managing the Yankees, though. He must be 90 years old by now. The last time I saw him, they had to carry him up to the plate when it was his turn to bat. They must be awfully short of managers if Stengel has the New York job. I remember Branch Rickey. I guess they haven't taken any pictures of him since 1926, because he's wearing the same suit and tie.

Don't Believe It; It Can't Be

Surely that can't be the same Connie Mack. My father told me about seeing Mack play his final game. This Connie Mack must be the original Connie Mack's grandson.

And, there's nothing in the papers about lacrosse. I guess that they don't play lacrosse in the summer any more. Just as likely, they've exchanged the lacrosse and hockey seasons and now lacrosse is a winter sport, played on skates.

There's another thing that I don't understand about baseball. The papers talk about the Phillies being National League champions. It must be a different city named Philadelphia. The Phillies haven't been out of the cellar since 1916, the year that Regret won the Kentucky Derby.

No. No. I'm not going to believe any of this. It's all a bad dream. And, then, the payoff was that piece about the rugby football teams getting ready for their season—Ha—they say that Argos will play Winnipeg on Aug. 10. That's going too far—they can't fool old Rip.

I'm going out to find those midgits and get them to take me to the same drugstore. Then I'm going back to sleep. Things may be back to normal the next time I wake up.

Allan Cup Second Major Crown For Owen Sound

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—Owen Sound Mercurys clinched a fight from the brink of elimination last night by defeating Fort Frances Canadians 3 to 1 to win the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior hockey championship.

The series went the full seven games before Mercurys ousted the Canadians, breaking out of a scoreless deadlock with three third-period goals.

The victory was a sweet one for Owen Sound and the capacity crowd of 2,300 fans. At one time Fort Frances had led the series 3 to 2 and needed only one win to take the trophy. Mercurys brought this Georgian Bay city of 17,000 its second national sports trophy in a year. Last fall the now-defunct Owen Sound Crescents won the Mann Cup, emblematic of Canadian senior lacrosse supremacy. Five members of the hockey Mercurys also played for the Crescents. They were Harry Kazarian, Doug Gillespie, Bill Alhum, Freddie Smith and Tommy Burlington.

DICK A LITTLE TIRED AFTER FIRST START

Scores No. 354

Against Capilanos

Kewpie Dick Barrett, the round man from Seattle, made his heralded debut for the Victoria Athletics last night—his first class B game in 22 years—and he made it a winner.

Though Dick wasn't around at the finish he stayed in there for six innings, giving up four hits, three runs (two earned), six walks and three wild pitches. He struck out five.

He left with the score 4 to 3 and Bill Osborn preserved the win—No. 354 for Barrett in his professional baseball career of 27 years.

Asked how he felt afterwards, Barrett said: "I'm a little tired; my arm's a little sore and my pivot leg is a little sore. I wasn't quite as sharp as I might have been, but my curve was breaking good, and that held me in good stead."

As Barrett prepared himself for the rubbering tab and a rub-down from trainer George Wilkinson, he added: "That's a start anyway, and I'm glad it turned out the way it did. Next time I'll be ready."

Docksiders Top West Heat

Jim Turner's two big circuit clouts played a large part in Esquimalt's 7 to 6 victory over West Heat in a senior B softball fixture played at Bullen Park last night. The second homer, in the fifth inning, drove in the winning run.

At Tillamook Park, pitcher Ed Dempster batted his B.C. Forest Products club to a 7 to 3 triumph over Tillamook in a second senior B duel. Dempster's two doubles and a single accounted for four runs.

Mrs. Bradford Has No-Hitter

Mary Bradford was the heroine of the Reds 1 to 0 victory over Ramblers in last night's women's softball fixture. Taking the mound in her first game, with-out practice, Mrs. Bradford pitched a no-hit, no-run game. Ramblers meet Toppers at lower Central Park tonight at 6:45.

Close Out Home Stand Against Leaders Tonight

By BILL WALKER

When speaking of the 1951 W.I.L. baseball season in the past, the words "Athletics" and "power" have hardly been synonymous. Rather, the reverse has been true.

That is why it must appear strange to followers of the men of Barrett today to hear that last night the A's "overpowered" Vancouver Capilanos 8 to 5.

It must also look odd in view of the fact that it was the A's second straight triumph over the league leaders and the first time this season that the Caps have suffered the ignominy of defeat twice in as many games.

Nevertheless, that is exactly what occurred at Athletic Park last night.

TWO HOME RUNS

Using the time-tested method of home runs for their power, the A's smashed through the Caps with a nine-hit attack featured by round-trip wallpops by Bill White and Don Pries. However, it shouldn't be overlooked either that catcher Milt Martin contributed a vital two-run producing single to the proceedings which got the A's out in front in the fifth inning.

Until that fifth frame the contest was as sweet a pitcher's duel as one would want to behold.

Kewpie Dick Barrett, in his first start for the A's, although in trouble several times, was mowing down the Caps with a one-hit stint. The lone blow until that time being a bunt single by John Ritchey in the fifth.

Pete Hernandez was dishing 'em up for the Caps and likewise was enjoying his outing immensely until the fifth.

That was the inning in which the A's struck first.

MARTIN COMES THROUGH

Hal Jackson started the three-run uprising by drawing a walk. Pries unloaded a double, Jackson stopping at third. Then Martin, who is getting his chance with Lilio Marcucci playing third, lashed a wicked single to centre to score both runners. Moving to second on the play, Martin was sacrificed to third by Barrett and scored on Bill Dunn's hoist to Dick Sinoic.

With Barrett tiring noticeably the Caps struck back in the sixth to knot the count. A crazy hop on

BILL BOEMLER JOINS YAKIMA

YAKIMA, Wash. (UP)—In an attempt to get the pitching strength, the fifth-place Yakima Bears of the Western International League have picked up Bill Boemler, a big southpaw, from Muskegon, Mich.

He has racked up a 1-1 record this year in Central League play and last season had a 9-14 record with St. Petersburg of the Florida International League.

Boemler is scheduled to start against the Tacoma Tigers Friday night. He was with the Victoria Athletics for a time in 1949.

Worth Hurls Indians Close To W.I.L. Lead

The romping Spokane Indians moved closer to the top of the Western International Baseball League last night.

Indians edged Tacoma 6 to 5 while first-place Vancouver was losing to Victoria to move within one and a half games of the lead. Art Worth got credit for the Spokane victory, his second.

Big Bill Bevens chalked up the third victory of his comeback attempt, pitching Salem Senators to a 3 to 2 win over Wenatchee. The ex-Yankee scattered seven hits, and was touched for runs only in the third and ninth in-

Murphy Sets Sights On Jake La Motta

CHICAGO (AP)—Irish Bob Murphy, a throwback to the days of the Sullivan and Fitzsimmons, today headed into three days of Epsom baths and a payoff fight in June with tough Jake La Motta.

Murphy, the International Boxing Club's star TV showman, came up last night with another "sensational" triumph, a technical knockout at 1:58 of the fourth round over Danny Nardico, a 23-year-old ex-marine from Tampa, Fla., and Palmsville, O.

Murphy, who thereby became winner of 58 of 63 pro fights, picked up $3,660 for his prize share. But he reserved space in his wallet for the big payoff due after his next scheduled outdoor scrap with mighty La Motta in New York, June 27.

"I'm not going to do anything before that La Motta fight, unless my manager comes up with a fight," Murphy said. "But if he does I'll fight. I'll fight every week if he says so. But I don't think he's figuring on anything until after Jake."

Murphy, who weighed 177 pounds last night, was a "slow starter" against the youthful Nardico. But after losing the first round he began landing with both hands, and Nardico, whose greatest triumph in 34 pro fights came with a 10th-round knockout over Nick Barone last March, was lucky to last into the fourth round.

The covering, similar to ones used in the United States, will be made of a waterproof canvas. Its cost will be shared by the eastern Big Four, the Western Conference and Varsity Stadium.

Records Fall At Esquimalt

Pickering Captures Four Major Events

Dave Pickering, rangy Esquimalt High School senior, donned a decaathlon mantle at yesterday's interhouse track and field meet held on the new Head Street playing field.

Pickering won the senior sprints, stepping the 100 yards on a grassy track in 11 seconds flat, and added the broad jump and a new record in the hop, step and jump to lead Mercury House to a sweeping victory.

The hop, step and jump was one of four school records pulled down in the day's events. Other marks were set by Jerry Harris, who established a new junior high jump record; Jim Ord, whose 15' 11" broad jump broke a long-standing junior mark; Ted Saunders, a new 35' 8" shotput record, and Barry Jackson, who tossed the discus an unprecedented 85' 2 1/4".

Beverly Ross and Helen Douglas emerged as top feminine threats in the looming inter-high meet. Both won three firsts. Beverly in the senior ranks and Helen among the juniors.

In the House competition, Mercury's 78 points gave a wide margin over Jupiter, 42, and Neptune, 34.

VIC HIGH RECORD

Records were the target at Victoria High School yesterday as the field event program went into its third day at Fernwood Road.

A new intermediate girls' broad jump mark went to Trelles Frame, who leaped 16' 2", a better effort than the senior girls, who bowed to Irene Davidson at 15' 8 1/4". Chris Boyd and Pat Wright were second and third in the intermediate. Barbara Richardson and Flo Pickering in the senior.

Chris Boyd won the intermediate girls' high jump at 4' 4 1/4" to edge out Trelles Frame and Heather Sinclair.

A leap of 19' 10 1/4" won the senior boys' broad jump for Gary Pynn, with Ted Whan and Don Donahue second and third.

Tom Hale was tops in the intermediate high jump, with Bob Zarry and Barry Jenner following closely behind his 5' 1 1/4".

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor.

Another Victorian has made a name for himself south of the border.

This time it's Russ Latham, 24-year-old son of Mrs. Beulah Latham, 3040 Uplands Drive.

Though the news may be somewhat ancient to those close to Russ, it is with great pleasure that we announce that the former Victoria College athlete has made the grade against the toughest field of 'em all, the much glorified American athlete.

Walker

Russ has been named an "All-Time Great" at Stanford University, where he is taking a two-year post graduate course in business administration towards his master's degree.

And Russ gained this signal honor in his chosen sport—English rugby, an endeavor quite foreign to the American way of athletic achievement but one which is gaining in popularity especially in California.

To quote in part a Stanford University account of the award:

"It is always a gratifying experience to witness perfection in an athlete. Here at Stanford we have been fortunate enough to see the great ones during the last few years.

"There is another athlete now performing, however, who so completely dominates his sport that one cannot help including him in the list of Stanford all-time greats.

"He is Russ Latham, the brilliant three-quarters and mainstay of this year's Pacific coast co-championship rugby team."

Russ is no newcomer to English rugby but rather is one of the most famous of the post-war crop of a fast disappearing race.

He had his early schooling at the Victoria and Oak Bay High Schools, where he made a name for himself in several different fields. Following a year at Victoria College, he completed his course in chemical engineering at the University of British Columbia. He not only graduated with first-class honors but was also the recipient of an academic scholarship in 1950.

Best Of The Thunderbirds, Too

A former member of Victoria's all-star rugby squad—the Crimson Tide—Russ was a standout performer during his tenure at Victoria, and in his final season with the Thunderbirds was named the "outstanding English rugby player" at the university.

During his four years at UBC, the Thunderbirds lost only one game out of 40 and established the enviable record of 33 straight victories. The Birds won the McKechnie Cup, symbolic of B.C. rugby supremacy, all four years, and the World Cup (in competition with California) three years.

Some of Russ' feats at Stanford include: scoring three times against Petaluma on runs of 17, 20 and 42 yards; against U.C.L.A. a running drop kick from 35 yards; scoring Stanford's lone try against California on one occasion, and drop-kicking a 35-yard goal on another to break a 9-0 tie and give the Indians their tie for the Pacific coast championship.

As a final tribute the editorial concerning Russ concludes:

"Although the rugby season is already over, Russ will be out again next year, so those of you who would like to see the game played as it truly should be, come out and watch."

PICKING UP THE PIECES—The word is that Victoria Lawn Tennis Club officials are seriously considering designing a permanent type tennis court in the badminton building. . . there is ample room for such an undertaking as the pro netters used the hall on their visit here this winter.

When Elmo Marucci hit that home run in the ninth inning against the Capitanos Tuesday, the entire Athletics' bench rose as one man to greet the husky catcher-turned infielder. . . Marucci started out in baseball as a third baseman and played like one in his first start here at the hot corner.

To prove that nothing has been going right for the A's, Gene Gaviglio and Gene Thompson are both on the shelf and Don Pries was in a hospital for a couple of days. . . and Barrett, taking after Branch Rickey of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been forced to play men out of position. . . If the A's have Rickey's success, they should stick to this winning formula.

Salé of Marty Krug Jr. closes out an expensive chapter in the history of the 1950 club. . . Would anyone care to ask just what the A's dropped on their so-called high-priced talent last season. Almost fanatical in his "will to win" and his is this fellow Pries. . . A visitor to the office this week was Don Gray, energetic and conscientious secretary of the Victoria and District Football Association. Don is in charge of publicity for the Fulham match against the city all-stars.

Radio-caster Ted Reynolds has entered a new field. . . it's cricket. . . To hear Ted tell it one would think he had been playing the game all his life. . . We wonder how many remember the trip taken by the Oak Bay Goblins Canadian rugby team to Alaska two years ago. . . we understand a certain airways would like to forget it. . . Probably one reason why no profit was shown on that particular trip. . . And what do you bowlers think of the new A.B.C. tournament high—a 775 series. . . Lee Jougard of Detroit set the new singles mark on games of 242, 255 and 278. . . we think he only had one blow.

Harry Stuart got a new name for it, but the electric eye is now in operation at Gibson's Bowldrome at a reported cost of $3,500. . . The only trouble with the new Strathcona Alley is that on certain alleys you can hear the foul bell ring. . . That is unless you get down on all fours.

We sympathize with the family and friends of that up-and-coming athlete Jim Lewis, who was burned severely about the face with hot tar Wednesday. . . Jim is the son of Charlie Lewis.

TRIPLE 'A' BALL!

Seals' 'Skulls' Make For Year's Oddities

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.)—Did you ever see a ballplayer tossed out at home as he tried to score from third base on a single to left field?

And did you ever see a base-runner forced out at second on a ball driven into right field, a normal single.

Perhaps you thought these things happened only in kid baseball, the variety that's played on the sandlots. But they occur elsewhere, too—even in class AAA minor leagues.

Both these head-shaking events took place yesterday while the San Francisco Seals were losing, 5 to 4, to San Diego. It was the Seals who were guilty of committing the skulls, going out of their way to give San Diego the game. It was an excellent example of why Frank (Lefty) O'Doul's charges are still in the Pacific Coast League cellar.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

The once-in-a-lifetime "baseball" happened at Seals' stadium in the fourth and ninth innings. In the fourth, with shortstop Jim Brideweser on third, Ray Orteig lined a single into left field. There was one out at the time and Brideweser, a runner with only fair speed, pranced back to third to see if the ball would be caught. It wasn't. Clarence Maddern, rifle-shot from the outfield to home cut down Brideweser as he attempted to hook slide into the plate.

The second dandy: Bob Thurman singled to open the ninth. Gene Valla dropped a shot into right field that should have gone for a one baser, but Thurman assumed the ball would be grabbed for an out. It wasn't. Rightfield Eddie Sauer's throw to second base snuffed out Thurman on a force and robbed Valla of a hit.

WORK BEGINS ON $4,000 BLEACHERS

New Stands To Seat 1,000 Fans

First "concrete" steps in the erection of bleachers at upper Central Park were taken yesterday as city workmen began pouring cement for footings.

Work started soon after City Council approved the plan put forward by the senior A softball league executive, which called for a city expenditure of $1,700 on labor, to be repaid by the league within two years. Total cost will be in the neighborhood of $4,000.

Confirmation of the agreement was undertaken at a league executive meeting held last night. Bud Hocking, who has handled the project for the league, was congratulated on bringing the various parties together in an acceptable and progressive undertaking.

Bleachers will provide seating for 500 people on each side of home plate and should be completed within two weeks' time.

ADMISSION CHARGES

The seating will be screened, to provide protection for the fans, and admission charges have been set at 15 cents or 2 for 25 cents for adults, and 10 cents for children over 12 years. Children under 12, accompanied by an adult, will be admitted free.

Bleacher construction will not interrupt the softball schedule. Pitzer & Nex are pitted against Chinese Students in tonight's game, set for 6.30.

Beginning Of The End

Irish Bob Murphy was trying to regain his balance here after dropping Dan Nardico for a nine-count in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round at San Diego last night. End came a few minutes later when Murphy was declared winner by a T.K.O. (AP Wirephoto.)

Louis-Savold Bout Shows Real Famine

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (U.P.)—The heavyweight fistfight still is in full force today and for indisputable proof you have the slow waltz which two tired old warriors will put on at the Polo Grounds on June 13.

One of the participants will be Joe Louis, a venerable gentleman probably remembered by all the grandparents in the audience. A true tipoff on the heavyweight situation is that Old Joe still is regarded by many as champion of everything except Ezzard Charles.

The limping Louis, who will be 37 on Sunday, has been installed a 2 to 1 choice. This is because his opponent will be 35-year-old Lee Savold, world champion of Great Britain and Paterson, N.J. This property should be billed as a bout in which the loser wins. Because, the sponsoring International Boxing Club insists, the victor is going to have to fight Charles for the title.

REAL ANGIENS

Ezzard, at such future date, will be guaranteed protection from any possible assault and battery charges which result. There is no truth to the rumor that either Louis or Savold once fought John L. Sullivan. But they've been around too long to be swapping fistfights with the Cincinnati rapier.

Illustrating the sad state among the would-be heavyweight challengers are the recent records of both Louis and Savold.

Old Joe, with tears in his eyes, announced last September 27, after he had been chopped to pieces by a then unconfident Charles, that he was through. After due consideration of his checking account and a bill from Uncle Sam on back income taxes, Joe changed his mind.

FEELER AT BEST

Since then he has fought five

Tribe Good To Lopat As Yanks Widen Lead

As long as Cleveland is in the American League, Eddie Lopat has a steady job. Since June 17, 1949, the chunky New York Yankee lefty is 10-0 against the tribe.

With a lifetime 29-6 edge over the Cleveland gang, Lopat is money in the bank for manager Casey Stengel.

Lopat's ability to flim flam the Indians is one of the important reasons for Stengel's great success at New York. He never was better than last night in his 10th straight success.

They criticized Old Case last summer when he used Lopat and Tommy Byrne as pinch-hitters against this Cleveland team. But last night Lopat proved his batting power once more. He hit a three-run homer and drove in five Yankee runs in their 9-to-2 triumph.

Lopat now tops both majors with a perfect 5-0 record for the year although his string of 32 innings without an unearned run was snapped when Cleveland scored two in the fourth inning. Loosey Bob Lemon, knocked out in the sixth, was followed by Lou Brissie and George Zuverink.

It was the Yanks' seventh win in nine starts on their first western trip that ends today at Cleveland. They stretched their first-place American League margin to two full games and left the Indians in third.

GIANTS MOVING

The Yanks' victory probably was the most important of yesterday's action but New York Giants' 17-to-0 romp over the makeshift St. Louis Cards started gone tongues wagging. Leo Durocher's crew now has won eight of its last 10 starts.

In the upper brackets of the National, Boston Braves took advantage of the Card collapse to widen their lead to two games. Vern Bickford allowed only two Cincinnati singles in winning his fifth straight, 4 to 0.

KONSTANTY'S FIRST

Jim Konstanty, the Phillies' ace reliever, plowed up his first win after three defeats as the Phils took a 10-inning game from Pittsburgh, 6 to 5.

Clyde King tamed the Chicago Cubs for a 5-to-4 Brooklyn victory. The American League got notice to expect the worst from Hal Newhouse from now on as the Detroit lefty shut out Washington 4 to 0.

Philadelphia A's scored six in the 10th to drub St. Louis Browns 8 to 2 after tying the game on Eddie Joost's homer in the ninth. Scores follow:

Two Hurt When Plane Hits Hangar

British Cut Tariffs To European Lands Chiefly

LONDON (Reuters).—About £70,000,000 ($199,500,000) worth of exports—3.7 per cent of total British export trade—will benefit from cuts in duty negotiated at the recent International Tariff Conference at Torquay.

A report on the conference, presented today to the House of Commons, shows that cuts in Britain's own tariffs will affect about £8,000,000 worth of imports a year—mainly from Europe.

Britain concluded nine bilateral agreements at Torquay, the most important of which were with West Germany, Austria and Turkey.

Britain and the United States failed to reach an agreement. The report says that the negotiations between Canada and the United States for their large-scale tariff agreement announced Tuesday night reduced some important margins of imperial preference (the system of lower tariffs among British Commonwealth countries). Australia,

New Zealand and Southern Rhodesia also made small reductions in some preferences. But South Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon made none.

200-LB. 'CO-ED' IS POPULAR

LOS ANGELES (AP).—Tradition has suffered a powerful kick in the pants at the University of California at Los Angeles.

It's all because of a strapping co-ed named Edna. When results of a student election were tabulated yesterday, there was Edna as a run-off candidate against Joyce Sheets for vice-president, traditionally a woman's job.

"Women should hold babies, not office!" was Edna's campaign slogan. The centre of the controversy is better known to his mother as Ed Hummel, 22, a six-foot 200-pound Delta Sigma Phi man. He admitted that the fraternity cooked up the gag.

Army Recruiting Officer Releases Basic Pay Schedule For Enlistees

Conflicting reports on the current army pay scale, today resulted in action by Capt. Sid Digby, in charge of the recruiting drive at Bay Street Armouries for the 27th Infantry Brigade Group, releasing the official basic pay schedule from rank of private to warrant officer, second class.

Pay scale follows:

	Single	Married	Married with no children	Married with children
Private	$72	$151	$166	$170
Private, 1st Class	$83	$155	$170	$174
Corporal	$103	$175	$190	$194
Sergeant	$119	$201	$216	$220
Warrant Officer, 2nd Class	$139	$229	$244	$248
Warrant Officer, 1st Class	$161	$251	$266	$270

Deductions include 6 per cent for pension, income tax and hospital insurance. Trades pay nets individuals from $4 to $28 a month more depending on their grouping.

Capt. Digby, administration and training officer of the Canadian Scottish reserve battalion, is in charge of recruiting two Scottish companies and men wanted for practically every other branch of the army.

THREE-YEAR STINT
Capt. Digby said the recruits sign on for a three-year tour of duty anywhere. Then can re-enlist at the end of that period if they wish.

N.C.O.'s can re-enlist at their rank at discharge from the last war. After a 90-day assessment period, ranks will either be confirmed or downgraded. If downgraded the men can elect discharge.

Capt. Digby said he can give a man accepted for service up to seven days' leave to clear up personal affairs.

In addition to recruits wanted to form two Scottish companies, the drive is strongly directed to ward manpower for artillery, signals, army service, medical and ordnance corps, R.C.E.M.E., provost, intelligence and postal.

The first Scottish company formed will go to the highland battalion to form a part of the force for service under Gen. Eisenhower on Continental Europe.

Primary objective of the drive is to get men for the new overseas force and form a backlog of reinforcements to maintain Canada's present air-borne defence brigade; provision of ample manpower for the 25th brigade in Korea and manpower provisions for home static, administrative and training installations.

FADED DOCUMENT ARRIVES 35 YEARS LATE WITH COMMISSION

MONCTON, N.B. (CP).—A veteran of the First World War, who served overseas with the Canadian 2nd Division, got the surprise of his life yesterday.

H. G. Palmer opened a manila envelope that had arrived in the mail, and which contained his commission and an official document classifying him as a musketry instructor during the war.

Dated 1916, both documents were in perfect order, the faded ink alone testifying to the 35 years they have been tucked away in some nook or cranny of some official desk.

Lighter Went 'Boom'

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP).—Two soldiers, standing on a street, lit cigarettes and let the lighted match fall to the ground. Whoosh! Flames shot 50 feet high. The match had touched off fumes from a leaking gas line. Sgt. Victor Knaub and Cpl. Lewis L. Gromo suffered minor burns.

To get the choicest meat, a lamb should be butchered at six months of age.

Will Elizabeth Scott Hold Martin, Lewis Spellbound?

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—A new comedy Cy Howard is grinding out for Hal Wallis is, according to the whispers, an out-and-out lampoon on David O. Selznick's "Spellbound." Elizabeth Scott is the lady psychiatrist and Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are her patients. Liz, meanwhile, is denying that the tough-grained doll she's playing in "The Racket" has any relation to Virginia Hill. She told me:

"I've played a lot of husky damsels in my life and this one's quite a babe. But she's not Virginia Hill."

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Film Shot Out Of Hollywood To Get Away From 'Phoniness'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP).—"Get out of town before it's too late, my love."

The refrain of that old Cole Porter song provides the theme song for today's essay on the problems of the film industry. The trend is put out by a young man named Russell Rouse, a film writer-director and one of the creators of a new film called "The Well."

"The Well" was largely filmed in two small Northern California towns. Rouse advises that other filmmakers should do more out-of-town shooting if they hope to cure the ailing box office.

"The pictures business is in a strange condition now," he explained. "Even good pictures sometimes don't make money. The only sure money-makers are the very unusual and the very good films."

"I think that one reason for the public's lack of interest in movies is because people are fed up on the phoniness of Hollywood films. The glossy glamor of studio-made pictures is too far from reality. People know that life isn't the way it appears in the films."

Impromptu Concert On White House Piano

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman gave an impromptu piano recital at the White House Wednesday.

His program included "The Little Fairy" which he told his enthusiastic audience, "was the first piece I ever learned." The President performed on a new piano presented to him to commemorate the observance of "National Music Week."

He confessed, during a brief acceptance speech, that while he usually liked one good aria in each of the heavy operas he found whole operas made him a little bored. He is, however, "very fond of light opera."

After running through "The Little Fairy" to the delight of photographers and newsmen, the President jumped quickly into Mozart's Sonata in A major and finished off his concert with the Paderewski waltz.

The piano was made by the country's major manufacturers from materials originating in U.N. countries.

CANADIANS' BIG BATTLE DESCRIBED

Held Waves Of Chinese Until Ammunition Spent

(The following account of Canadian action in Korea was delayed by a month in the past.)

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Canadians fought until their ammunition was exhausted, then hurried their rifles with bayonets attached like spears into the attacking Chinese when the 2nd Battalion, P.P.C.L., stopped the latest Chinese offensive cold in its tracks in Korea's west central sector.

Brunt of the initial attack was borne by a company under Maj. Vince Lilley of Hamilton when the Chinese advanced wave upon wave to storm the Canadian positions.

BLOW DIVERTED

Bogged down ultimately by a stubborn British and Australian stand April 24, the Chinese diverted their weight in the sector to an assault on the hills held by the Patricias.

The first slit trench attacked was in the section commanded by Cpl. G. R. Evans. It was on the hump of a hog's back spur occupied by a platoon under Lieut. Harold Ross of St. Catharines, Ont., and jutting out from the main line of Lilley's ridge.

(Cpl. Evans, who enlisted in Vancouver and whose next-of-kin live in Norwich, Norfolk, Eng., was reported killed in action in a casualty list issued at Ottawa May 1. Lieut. Ross apparently had recovered from wounds suffered earlier in the campaign. He was listed as wounded in the first Korean casualty list issued at Ottawa March 2.)

Said Sgt. Roy Ulmer of Castor, Alta., Ross' platoon sergeant:

"Just before dark we saw them coming out of the hills to the north. But once night fell we lost sight of them.

"They're good night fighters, and are well on top of you with those rubber shoes of theirs before you know it: quiet as mice. They came in on Evans first. He spotted them just as the first wave was coming in. He put up a fire fight that lasted an hour and held them off.

BRING WOUNDED IN

"Then they tried McLennan's (L. Cpl. Neil McLennan of Ottawa). They got on top of Mac's and he opened up and held them off until one of his men was hit in the stomach with a grenade.

All the time they were mortaring us—just to keep us interested. Mac's men brought the wounded man back to platoon headquarters and returned to find their position over-run. They just grabbed their ammunition and high-tailed it back to platoon headquarters, where they jumped into the slit trenches and fought with us from there."

Still sleepy after the battle, grimy and unshaven, Ulmer, a former company sergeant-major with the Loyal Edmonton Regiment during the Second World War, continued:

"They would keep on coming in waves. Just like the descriptions we'd heard."

"There's a whistle, they get up with a shout about 10 feet from our positions and come in."

"The first wave throws its grenades, fires its weapons and goes to ground. It is followed by a second which does the same, and then a third come up. Where they disappear to I don't know. But they just keep on coming."

Evans' forward corner wasn't quiet long. The storm spilled along to the whole company front and half an hour later he had been wounded in the leg and in the chest. On he fought. He wouldn't give up.

It was his Bren gunner, Pte. Ken Marsh of Toronto, who reported the Chinese right among the Canadians. So Ross ordered Evans' men, too, back to the headquarters area.

Evans wanted to fight on right there and finally had to be carried out by Marsh and Pte. Bob Tolliver of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., his friend.

Around Ross' headquarters the men by then were four and five in slit trenches dug for one or two. They shared their ammunition and got what they could from another section, still holding out under Cpl. Archie Wabaska of High Prairie, Alta.

'WONDERFUL TARGETS'

Said Pte. Carl Deschamps of Carleton Place, Ont.: "They would come up from a little hollow about 25 yards from the top, and in the moonlight they made wonderful targets."

The fight was carried on from there until almost all the platoon's last round was gone, and all its grenades.

Then Ross said: "We're out of ammunition, there's no use staying. Pick up the wounded. Let's go."

Lilley confirmed the decision and ordered him to fall back. The distance was 50 yards.

Deschamps saved a situation by hurling his bayonet at a Chinese.

Ulmer earned another moment by throwing his rifle, bayonet attached, like a spear into the body of an advancing Communist, knowing that he could re-arm himself later with a weapon from one of the casualties.

While the others picked up what they could, collected all the wounded and carried them back to the main company perimeter, Ross and three others stayed forward to give them covering fire.

Ross and his runner, Pte. Dymytr Fodchuk of Vancouver, fired from their slit trenches. And Ptes. Wayne Mitchell of Winnipeg and Marsh got up with their Bren guns, and firing from the hip, held the still-oncoming hordes at bay. Mitchell remained in battle though twice hit in the face, and has refused to be evacuated as a casualty.

(But Mitchell apparently was forced to, later. He was listed in an Ottawa casualty list issued April 30 as wounded.)

By morning the Chinese appeared to have had enough.

Said Lilley: "They just couldn't keep that up indefinitely without having to reorganize."

They fell back and the little bit of ground Ross abandoned during the night was effortlessly retaken in the morning.

Within inches and feet of the Patricias' trenches were 17 bodies the enemy hadn't carried away. Another 50 were found in hastily scratched graves. More, together with the wounded, must have been carried away. The Chinese seldom leave casualties, and few dead on the battlefield.

Not only human beings are subjected to snow blindness, animals being afflicted with the same malady.

Ocean sunfish increase their weight 60,000,000 times.

ARCHDUKE OTTO

Lavish Pageant As Throneless Archduke Wed

NANCY, France (CP)—Archduke Otto von Hapsburg, heir to the defunct Austro-Hungarian throne, gave his lost kingdom an empress today. He married a blue-eyed German princess in a lavish display of 18th-century pageantry.

Scores of Europe's throneless royalty thronged here for the double rites uniting the 38-year-old Otto and 25-year-old Princess Regina of Saxony-Meiningen, whom he met while touring refugee camps in Bavaria.

A civil ceremony in the city hall was followed by impressive Roman Catholic rites an hour later in the Church of the Rope-makers, where many of the bridegroom's ancestors are buried.

As the newlyweds left the church, several eggs splattered on the ground about ten yards from them. They did not seem to notice, nor did they pay any attention when the egg-throwers, apparently students, shouted: "Long live the republic."

U.S. Personal Incomes Soar To 241 Billions

WASHINGTON (UP).—Personal income of Americans hit an annual rate of $241,300,000,000 in March.

The Commerce Department reported the March rate was an increase of $1,200,000,000 over February. Wage and salary payments showed a $2,000,000,000 rise during March, the 13th month in a row in which such items rose.

More than a third of the March increase was accounted for by increases in the Government's civilian and military payroll.

Farm income during March was at an annual rate of $18,700,000,000, of $200,000,000 from February, but still $1,100,000,000 above the rate for all of last year.

NATICK, Mass. (UP)—Celebrating her 103rd birthday, Mrs. Lydia Stevens complained: "I declare, I can't remember what happened lately but I can recall things in the Civil War."

The first state visit of a reigning British king to Stratford on Avon where William Shakespeare was born in 1564 did not occur until April of 1950. Yet London is only 92 miles away.

By ART STOTT

If you hear Bill Van Druten talking about his group of seven, he's not discussing Canadian art. Bill is referring to the membership of a Tuxis unit he leads in town. It's the one and only now, the lone survivor, or probably the first resurgence, of a movement which once included scores of boys.

Bill says the war took the leaders away and those who returned didn't go back into Tuxis. There are church groups still operating, and the juniors and boys nine and 10 — are being organized, but the 16 and up age class hasn't been brought into the fold. He figures his group of seven may eventually provide the leadership required and Tuxis could grow again.

THE MOVEMENT, centred in the church, has a four-fold program. It gives attention to the physical, educational, devotional and social. The Boy Scouts differ in that they do not necessarily adhere to any church.

The physical emphasis, Bill tells me, lies on participating games. Competition isn't played up too much. If it were—and it's the least of his worries now—too many ringers might be introduced into Tuxis teams. That probably happened in the old days, just as it did in church swimming teams.

Years ago one of Vancouver's best freestyle sprinters was a lanky young fellow called Johnny Bailey. He was so good that the minister of the church in his district used to let Johnny drive his new car Sundays, while he read the athlete Scripture to qualify him for the Sunday School gala. Strictly amateur, of course.

Bill Van Druten doesn't cotton on to that routine. He'd rather keep Tuxis ideals ahead of athletic stardom. By his interpretation, the movement would be pretty selective, though he doesn't want it as exclusive as it is now. There's room for more than seven members—and there's a fertile field for development by people who keep talking about the need for juvenile organization on an ethical plane.

THE IMMEDIATE problem seems to be that there aren't enough Bill Van Drutens around town. Bill happens to have a lot of the qualities necessary for the job. His record as a McKeehn Cup rugby player while he was in the Army doesn't impair his attraction to teen agers, either. Maybe his hopes to restore the movement will be justified. Current unending discussions on juveniles indicate interest in such organizations. But it's a lot easier just to talk about it. Then, too, Bill never was a Tuxis as a youngster. He's just picking up the load other people used to carry for former Tuxis boys, who, incidentally, should be about Bill's age and able to do a little of the work in their own churches that he is doing in his.

WONDER WHAT would happen if you had nerve enough to go up and talk to different people just because you wanted to talk to them. It's a simple procedure if you're away from home. Nothing is more natural than to walk up to a stranger and ask him or her something and explain that you're new in the district. When you're in your own town, you don't do that. You wait for the chance to be presented and then you trot out that little phrase: "I've been hoping to meet you for a long time." Why didn't you? Did you have to let somebody go through the ceremony of introductions first? Sure. That's what I do, too.

STILL IF YOU see a guy with a pleasant smile, it seems silly not to let him know you appreciate the way he looks anyhow. It could be a disguise, of course. Maybe he's not like the smile at all. But there's only one way to find out. Go up and talk to him. The routine could degenerate into the atmosphere of a service club gathering for luncheon, with handshakes whipping out from all corners of the room. And it might develop a defence reaction. People might move away when you approached. With that kind, you wouldn't want to talk, and you can't afford to be too thin-skinned. But don't try the experiment on strange women. They like it conventional. And a guy has to have something more than a robust ego to survive an icy-phased: "Aren't you making a mistake?"

JERRY EDGE SAYS there are a few spring salmon moseying along out in the Strait. He hooked one over the weekend. It hit his lure, zing, and is still going, along with some of his tackle. Jerry believes they hang around Macaulay Point and down in Oak Bay. At Macaulay, he thinks the early salmon try to make dinner dates with herring heading up the Gorge. He says they don't show up often off Gonzales Bay. Maybe

HEAD FOR 'PROMISED LAND'

Minneapolis Pair Real Adventurers

After a day in Victoria an auxiliary schooner from Minnesota weighed anchor in the Inner Harbour here today and sailed away with a crew of adventurers and two dogs bound to their "Promised Land," Alaska, where they hope to start life anew.

Bearded skipper Warren Christianson, 30, of Minneapolis, Minn., owner of the vessel Tantalus, and his pretty wife, Faith, started their sea voyage to Alaska in November, 1949. They sailed down the Mississippi, called at Cuban and West Indies ports, proceeded through the Panama Canal, and are now on the last lap of their long voyage.

"We always wanted to go to Alaska," said Mr. Christianson, who is a graduate lawyer. "We want to settle there."

Mr. Christianson intends to practice law at Anchorage, Alaska. "I hope to raise a family and settle down," Mrs. Christianson said.

The 45-foot schooner with sleeping quarters for eight, equipped with a library of sea novels and law books, was built by the young couple after the war. "It was a hard job," said Mr. Christianson, "but we made it."

Mr. Christianson said their vessel weathered a storm for over 50 days off the coast of Mexico. "We were not in trouble," he said. "But people ashore thought we had met with an accident."

The couple said they were not tired of the sea but admitted that "too much of one thing" is somewhat tiresome at times. "The couple have had two crews since they left their home town. The first were mostly college students who went with them as far as California. The second they picked up at San Diego, Calif., who like themselves intend to settle in Alaska."

The crew, Merle Dick, 38; Fred Parker, 28, and Ken Hilbert, 27, all of San Diego, said they were tired of the big cities and wanted to live where one can hunt and fish.

As for the two Alsatian dogs, Riot and her pup, Mainsail, they seemed quite content to accompany their masters to Alaska.

Lawyer Protests High Legal Fee Against Client

A charge that the way some lawyers were billing their clients was discouraging people from having their affairs settled by the courts, was made by P. J. Sinnott, Victoria lawyer, in Supreme Court chambers today.

Mr. Sinnott, representing Arabelle Sinclair of Victoria, one of the beneficiaries in the will of Barbara Sinclair, who died on Jan. 13, 1950, complained to Mr. Justice H. S. Wood that his client had been "excessively" taxed by the Supreme Court registry after the will of the deceased was probated in solemn form in court.

The bill of cost against his client was rendered by J. B. Clearhue, K.C., and R. A. Wootton, representing two other beneficiaries of estate, Mr. Sinnott said.

"It is true that your Lordship some months ago rendered cost of the action against my client," said the lawyer. "But I am sure that if your Lordship had been aware of the facts surrounding the case he would not have permitted my client to be taxed so high."

Mr. Sinnott pointed out that his client had been taxed $1,700 for hearing that only took an hour in court.

"This is the sort of thing which gives the public an erroneous opinion of lawyers," he said.

Mr. Justice H. S. Wood said it was too late to do anything about the judgment which rendered the cost of the court actions against Mr. Sinnott's client.

"However, we can always whittle down the bill," he said.

His Lordship said he would consider the matter before making a decision.

Traffic Across Cowichan River Resumed After Collapse Of Bridge

Traffic across Cowichan River, disrupted when the highway bridge at Lake Cowichan collapsed late Wednesday afternoon, resumed today following temporary alterations made to the nearby E. & N. Railway bridge.

The 60-foot span of the highway bridge, built in 1932, crashed to the river at 4:20, practically under the rear wheels of a loaded lumber truck driven by Harry Brent, Lake Cowichan, who had to "gun" his motor at the last second to get off the falling span.

J. T. Edwards and K. W. Helrich, Vancouver, following in a light pick-up truck, just avoided plunging into the river with a skidding stop at the brink.

TO BUILD FILE BRIDGE Public Works Minister E. C. Carson said today that his department will begin immediate construction of a pile bridge across the river beside the site of a new bridge, scheduled to be built this summer.

Plans for the permanent bridge, of treated wood construction, are fairly complete, he said, but will be rushed to allow construction as soon as possible.

A special crew at Western Forest Industries mill, Honeycomb Bay, rushed through the cutting of timbers to lay on ties of the railway bridge to permit traffic to cross.

FLAGMEN ON SPAN Flagmen will be stationed to guide the one-way traffic on the bridge.

"We have many similar problems in the province," Mr. Carson said, "but due to limitations of finance, staff, and materials, we can only handle so many each year."

School buses, which passed over the bridge just a few minutes before it crashed, bumped across the bare ties of the railway bridge this morning. Children walked back to school this morning under guidance of their parents.

The volunteer fire department acted quickly. As soon as the bridge collapsed it split its strength, sending an auxiliary pump and hose across the railway trestle.

It was no sooner across than an alarm came from the home of John Cennane, millworker, but since no water was available for the pump the home was destroyed.

Youngsters with boats made a killing ferrying workmen back and forth to their homes.

Essential School Projects Will Continue Says Straith

1950 Surplus Will Assist Construction

Essential school construction in B.C. will not be curtailed this year despite the fact the provincial government's borrowing for classroom projects has been cut in half.

The province had authority to borrow $10,000,000 for school building last year to match, equally, amounts local school boards intended to spend.

The borrowing power this year was cut to $5,000,000 and there was some fear among school boards that their plans would have to be cut similarly.

Only $8,000,000 of the $10,000,000 available last year was used this year which, with the $5,000,000 provided at the last session of the Legislature, makes $7,000,000 available in provincial grants.

With this year's funds only $1,000,000 short of what was spent last year, Education Minister W. T. Straith says school boards have no reason to worry about their building projects being curtailed to any degree.

"We can be certain all essential construction will be carried out," the minister said.

A few minor jobs, not required vitally, might have to be postponed.

WARM DAYS, COOL NIGHTS MAY FORESTALL B.C. FLOODS

Heavy snow in B.C.'s mountain ranges is melting quickly but it is too early still to say if the rivers of the province will be flooding next month. Officials of the water rights branch of the Department of Lands and Forests said today they could only hope warm temperatures will continue during the daytime with cool nights to check the melting.

It is felt that there will be no widespread flooding if heavy rains hold off and present temperatures continue.

Crucial time for the Fraser River in the annual flood threat is at the beginning of June, while the Columbia problem arises nearer the middle of June.

BATTLE TO FINISH

Oak Bay Challenges City To Golf Match

Long-time antagonists on nearly every issue under the sun, Oak Bay and Victoria City Councils may fight to the finish on the links of Victoria Golf Club, it was revealed today.

The club of course is in Oak Bay.

Oak Bay, in a letter to the mayor today, challenged Victoria to a tourney on "the only scenic golf course hereabouts" on one of the following dates: May 16, 17, 18, 21, 28, 30 or 31.

Mayor Percy George and Reeve P. A. Gibbs are "to draw clubs at dawn on 9 a.m." There are to be eight-man teams consisting of six members of council, including the mayor and two officials.

The mayor and reeve will be entitled to 23 plus.

"Ald. Frank Mulliner and Councillor J. V. Johnson are to quit counting strokes after reaching the fifth green," wrote Reeve Gibbs.

Twosomes suggested include Ald. Bill Pinfold and Councillor Dick Wilson; Ald. Percy Scurrah and Councillor Jack Rutland; Manager Cecil Wyatt and Municipal Clerk Archie Findlay.

If the city accepts it is to have its "second" advise the Oak Bay second, scribe Archie Findlay.

The mayor put the challenge up to a special meeting of City Council late today—called, not for the purpose, but to pass the 1951 expenditure by-law.

ALL MISTAKE, SCREAMS GRUBER

Blames Over-Zealous Reporter For Comments On Singer's 9th Concert

While the "battle of the symphonies" waged fortissimo Wednesday, Victoria Symphony conductor Hans Gruber flew east today.

Jaques Singer, Vancouver maestro, merely flew into a rage. "Cheap publicity!" he bellowed, after reading a statement attributed to Mr. Gruber, that Vancouver's performance of Beethoven's Ninth on Monday night was "nothing short of criminal."

"It is the privilege of every man to make an ass of himself," Mr. Singer said, between rehearsals, "but Mr. Gruber has abused that privilege."

The two conductors are well known to each other, though not bosom friends. Many times they have compared scores (musical, that is) over a luncheon tete-a-tete.

EMBARRASSING MISTAKE

Before taking off for Toronto, Mr. Gruber told The Victoria Daily Times by long-distance telephone that publication of his opinion of the Monday night Vancouver performance was an embarrassing mistake. He blamed it all on an "over-zealous reporter."

GRUBER'S REPLY Text of the Gruber statement follows:

"I hereby officially and categorically deny any and all intentions on my part to make public my views on the concert given by the B.C. Philharmonic Orchestra and chorus on May 7 in Vancouver."

"I made no statements of any description to the press verbal or written and made not the slightest move or issued authority to anyone for my views of said concert to be officially reported upon or for them to gain circulation of any width.

"So far as I can determine it was an over-zealous reporter with entirely perverse ideas of what constitutes legitimate publicity who must have learned indirectly and the most round about way of my having been severely shocked at the proceedings at that concert and took that as sufficient cause to make up a wholly fictitious story filled with equally fictitious quotes."

"Particularly his phrase—I emphasize this—of my alleged comparison of the sounds of the chorus to that of pigs. This was a crude fantasy from his uncouth brain."

"The chorus, quite the contrary, was much the most acceptable participant of the evening. I hereby officially disclaim any and all responsibility for this story."

Holds Hope For Bridge Authority

Works Minister E. C. Carson has not abandoned hope of a toll bridge authority being set up in British Columbia.

He said today the establishment of an authority to build bridges across various waterways in several parts of the province to replace ferry services was becoming more and more necessary.

Tolls charged on the bridges would be used to pay for the spans replacing the ferries which are heavily subsidized in many cases.

The toll bridge authority plan of the minister was rejected at the last session of the Legislature for financial reasons. The drain on capital funds for other public works was the reason for the shelving of the plan. A grant is necessary as "the years" to start the toll bridge procedure working.

Mr. Carson believes the growing cost of ferries will bring about the establishment of the authority, though, and he intends to pick one of the proposed sites for a bridge, analyze costs, and submit the findings to the Legislature next year.

Among existing ferry services mentioned in toll bridge replacement talk are the Kootenay service from Nelson across to the north shore; the Kelowna-Westbank service; Rosedale-Agassiz on the Fraser River, and the Castlegar service.

British Television Fans Have View Of Royal Couple At Taverners' Ball

LONDON (CP) — Television viewers saw happy pictures of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on one of their first nights out since the Duke's return from Malta, where he commanded the frigate Magpie.

Accompanied by Princess Margaret, Elizabeth and her husband attended the Lord's Taverners Ball where the cameras caught Princess Elizabeth laughing hilariously at a "cricket match" played on the floor of the ballroom.

The Lord's Taverners, an exclusive male club, has been in existence almost a year. The name derives from the tavern at Lord's cricket ground.

With a closed membership of 200, they are proud that the 12th member is the Duke of Edinburgh. This year's president is John Mills, well-known British actor.

The cricket match, played in the ballroom of London's Grosvenor House, was probably the first ever held in a hotel. A high screen kept the spectators out of harm's way. The club team, challenging "The Rest of the World," played such famous British cricketers as Norman Yardley and Bill Edrich.

HIGH JINKS

The formidable opposition did not, however, dismay the club team including such comedians as Robertson Hare, Basil Radford and Naughton Wayne. They played a cricket not yet included in the rule books, using large balls, small balls, balls that bounced, balls that didn't and an octagonal ball. The Taverners won.

Amused onlookers watched Princess Elizabeth, dressed in a campaign-colored gown embroidered with sequins, and Princess Margaret in a strapless shell-pink satin gown, take a look at "What the Butler Saw." A penny peep-show, it cost the Princesses 2s (30 cents) each.

The Royal party stayed till 2 a.m. and on leaving Princess

Elizabeth asked Martin Boddey, the Taverners' chairman: "Please may I come again next year? It's so nice to go to a party with no formalities."

Proceeds of the ball go to the National Playing Fields Association of which the Duke of Edinburgh has been president for two years.

June Sale Planned

Plans for a rummage sale on June 9, in Hard of Hearing Hall, high lighted recent meeting of Robert Burns McMicking Chapter, L.O.E., at the Beach Drive home of Mrs. Frank Partridge.

Following a report of officers, including treasurer's report of a balance of $78.62 in the general fund, members were reminded of the intercession service, Sunday, May 27, at 11, in First Baptist Church, and the Memorial Service at Ross Bay Cenotaph, June 3, at 3.

An article entitled "Canadian Democracy" was read by Mrs. Ethel Young, Empire study convener, and regent, Mrs. E. Lowthian, presented a report of the provincial annual meeting.

Plans for annual party for blind personnel have been postponed until September.

Following the meeting refreshments were served.

Mother's Day — At meeting of Women's Benefit Association held recently, a Mother's Day tea was arranged to take place at the Empress Hotel, Sunday at 3. Mrs. M. Dunsmore presided and a brief silence was held for late Mrs. Ada Davis, a color bearer of guard team for 20 years.

Gifts Donated To Caroline Macklem Home For Aged

A shower of gifts from members of the diocese and the public was received yesterday when Caroline Macklem Home for elderly women was open to the public. Gifts of every kind and cash donations were received.

It was in 1948 that Mrs. R. O. Taylor, president of Anglican Diocesan Women's Auxiliary, started a fund that she hoped would finally enable the diocese to provide a home for the aged.

In a much shorter time than had been hoped they received a substantial legacy — Miss Kathleen Agnew donated her

Presentation Party Today At Royal Buckingham Palace

LONDON (CP) — Seventy-two Canadian women looked nervously today at dripping skies and hoped for better weather at today's presentation party at Buckingham Palace.

The Canadians will be among more than 1,000 women from various countries chosen as guests of the Royal Family. All will have tea with the King and Queen and the lucky ones may chat for a moment with their hosts.

For the first time since 1939 the presentations will take place inside the palace instead of in the gardens. But tea will be served there and if the weather relents guests will saunter around the grounds.

In the palace itself, debutantes will descend the half-moon staircase in Paris. Each will curtsy in front of Their Majesties, marking a return to the more formal practice of pre-war presentations.

Among the Canadian women will be Miss Joan and Mrs. John Aitken of Toronto, related to

Up-Island Wedding Rites For Mr. And Mrs. Davey

St. Alban's Church at Port Alberni was scene of a quiet wedding recently when Alice Maude Stewart and James Harold Davey were united in marriage.

To repeat her vows before Rev. H. Greenhalgh the bride chose a silken two-piece dress in tones of dusty rose with contrasting navy blue accessories. A shoulder corsage bouquet of sweetheart rosebuds and fragrant lily of the valley completed her bridal ensemble.

Attending her mother as matron of honor was Mrs. J. Price, in a two-piece dress of navy blue with delicate pink accessories. Her corsage bouquet was rosebuds.

The groom chose J. Lockey for best man.

Following the 8 o'clock ceremony, the bridal party returned to Victoria for a small reception held for immediate members of the family at the San Marino Crescent home of Mrs. Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Davey will make their home at Colwood.

R.O.K. Vice-President Quits; Protests Loudly

PUSAN (UP)—Lee Si yung, 82, resigned today as Vice-President of the Korean Republic with a blast at President Syngman Rhee.

Lee told the National Assembly in a letter that he quit because Rhee had failed to improve the government's domestic and foreign policies.

"The country... is declining from bad to worse," Lee said. "Therefore, I now resign and apologize to my fellow-countrymen."

The letter touched off bitter criticism of Rhee in the Assembly. A dozen members accused him of dictatorial tactics.

There were rumors that Premier John M. Chang also may resign.

The Vice-President is appointed by the President and has no specific powers of his own.

5 Match Concerns In Monopoly Trial

MONTREAL (CP)—Methods of control of Commonwealth Match Company Ltd., were described Wednesday by a former company officer at trial of five match companies charged with forming and operating a Canadian match monopoly.

Accused with Commonwealth was Eddy Match Co. Ltd., Canada Match Ltd., Federal Match Ltd., and the Valcourt Company.

The witness examined by John Ahearne, special Crown prosecutor, was P. B. Keyes of Ottawa, now manager of Canada Match. He was manager of Commonwealth from 1933 until 1949 and also president of Ledburn Company, a holding company which owned a minority group of Commonwealth stock.

But most of all he watched Mrs. Redtail sitting in the next tree to the one in which was the big nest they had added to from year to year until now it was almost twice as big as it was the year they built it. She was spending a lot of time around that nest. Sometimes she flew over to sit on the edge of it. There she would sit and sit just doing nothing. Sometimes she would fly back and forth above it.

It had been this way for several days. Once in a while she joined him high in the sky, sailing the air currents for the sheer joy of being alive in Spring and back home. And she did some hunting, enough to get what food she needed. But much of the time she was never far from that nest.

"I hope," said Redtail, looking down from high in the sky, watching Mrs. Redtail. But he didn't say what he hoped, for just then he saw Mrs. Redtail flying rather hastily up in the air as if she were anxious, perhaps a little afraid, certainly disturbed. In a moment he saw why; he understood. Down at the foot of the tree, looking up, was a boy.

Probably this would settle the matter. Mrs. Redtail never again

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

In making up your mind be slow. Be sure you absolutely know. Mrs. Redtail.

Redtail the Hawk, high in the sky above the Green Forest, screamed. No, he wasn't in pain. He wasn't hurt. That was a scream of pure joy. It was Spring and he and Mrs. Redtail were home. It was good, oh so good, to be sailing in great circles once more, almost cloud-high above the Green Forest, above the Green Meadows and the Old Pasture, out over the Big River. It was good just to sail and sail and look down on all the familiar things.

Redtail, like all members of the Hawk family, has wonderful eyes. To Johnny Chuck sitting on his doorstep looking up, Redtail was hardly more than a dark speck against a white cloud. To Redtail looking down Johnny Chuck was as clearly seen as if he were close by.

Looking down on the dear Old Briar-patch he saw Peter Rabbit dozing in a bramble-tangle and Mrs. Peter sitting at the very edge of the Briar-patch dreamily looking out over the Green Meadows. What was she dreaming about? Could it be baby bunnies?

He saw Reddy Fox taking home a couple of Mice to Mrs. Reddy at their home in the Old Pasture. He saw Mr. and Mrs. Quack feeding among the broken rushes along the edge of the Big River. In the Old Orchard Skimmer the Swallow was trying to drive Winsome Bluebird and Mrs. Winsome from a house they already had taken possession of. He watched Jerry Muskrat swimming in the Smiling Pool. Over in the Green Forest, Lightfoot the Deer drank at a little pool in Laughing Brook and Thunderer the Grouse strutted along an old log.

And then he came in sight of the nest. Mrs. Redtail was nowhere in sight, but with the first good look at that nest Redtail knew that the matter was settled. There was a certain sign that told him what he so wanted to know. Tucked into the side of the old nest, as if to brighten it, was a touch of green, some twigs from a pine tree.

"We are going to stay," thought Redtail happily.

To Johnny Chuck sitting on his doorstep looking up, Redtail was hardly more than a dark speck against a white cloud.

would feel easy now that one of those two-legged folks knew about that nest. Now they would have to look around in some other part of the Green Forest, or even go over at the foot of the Great Mountain, and go to all the work of building a wholly new nest.

Then he saw who that two-legged person was and he was less sure that they would have to build a new nest. That was Farmer Brown's boy. Yes, sir, that was Farmer Brown's boy down there, and he had known where that nest was every year since it was first built. Perhaps he guessed that it was good thing that Farmer Brown's boy knew about that nest. Perhaps this was why they never had been bothered by other boys.

It was two days later that Redtail began to be really impatient. He didn't feel settled. There is no more uncomfortable feeling than that of feeling unsettled. "I do wish she would make up her mind. Yes, sir, I do so," thought Redtail as he flew back from a trip over the meadows, on the other side of the Big River. "If we use the old nest it will save a lot of work, and why should we do a lot of unnecessary work? Of course I will do whatever she wants to do, but I do wish she would decide."

And then he came in sight of the nest. Mrs. Redtail was nowhere in sight, but with the first good look at that nest Redtail knew that the matter was settled. There was a certain sign that told him what he so wanted to know. Tucked into the side of the old nest, as if to brighten it, was a touch of green, some twigs from a pine tree.

"We are going to stay," thought Redtail happily.

City Council Approves Formation Of Greater Victoria Planning Unit

Formation of a regional planning board for the Greater Victoria district was approved by City Council, Tuesday.

Mayor Percy George advised aldermen that a meeting of city, Saanich and Esquimalt representatives agreed that a planning board was "desirable and in the best interests of the whole community."

He recommended that the Minister of Municipal Affairs be notified, and requested to take action at an early date, to declare the Greater Victoria district a regional planning area and to set up the proposed board.

"Why was Oak Bay not represented?" asked Alderman Aubrey Kent.

"I don't know their reasons," replied Mayor George. "They declined in a letter and it looks as if at the moment they are not prepared to co-operate."

"Work is in the preliminary stages yet," declared Alderman William Pinfold, intimating Oak Bay's attitude might be different at a later date regarding the planning board.

Commenting on the city's move, Reeve P. A. Gibbs of Oak Bay said: "Oak Bay is always ready to discuss town planning with the city and will co-operate as much as possible. We have our own town planning commission and are willing to co-ordinate our plans with those of the city."

Big Four Deputies Getting Nowhere But None Willing To Call It Off

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Foreign News Editor

Ten weeks ago four men sat down in a pink palace in Paris to talk about war and peace. They are Deputy Foreign Ministers of the U.S., Britain, France and Russia. The Russian delegate is Andrei Gromyko, an intense, dark-haired man who at one stage of his career was the world's best known pedestrian. He attained that eminence by walking out of the United Nations any time he heard something that displeased him.

The purpose of the Paris meeting is to try to draw up a program for discussions which will search out and correct the conditions that keep East and West at swords' points in the cold war.

WHY NOT QUIT?

The net result to date is that nothing has been accomplished in a positive sense. In a negative sense things are worse than when the conference convened. A solid wall of dislike has been built up between the Russians on one side and the delegates of America, Britain and France on the other. Then why not break it up and let everybody go home?

Because neither side wants to assume the blame for torpedoing a conference whose stated objective is peace. That would give the other side too much propaganda ammunition. The Moscow radio would have enough material for two weeks.

BLIND ALLEYS

Nevertheless the four men may be getting to the end of the road. Every avenue has been explored and re-explored. But as far as the Western world is concerned, the avenues have turned out to be blind alleys. There always comes a time when Gromyko, in

British Arms For Commonwealth Troops In Korea

LONDON (Reuters)—Commonwealth troops in Korea will use mostly British arms and equipment, though some of their units will have American vehicles and weapons.

Woodrow Wyatt, Under-Secretary for War, told the House of Commons Wednesday when replying to a question about standardization of arms, equipment, services and ranks in the Commonwealth Division.

He said there would be complete integration of the base organization. Commonwealth troops would be included in most of the movement and maintenance services, Wyatt added.

Canada's 25th Brigade will be part of the new Commonwealth Division.

Appeal Opens On Drug Conspiracy

The appeal of William Carter of Vancouver against a conviction of conspiring with George and John Mallack to sell drugs opened in the B.C. Court of Appeals here Wednesday. Carter was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary following his trial in Vancouver Assize Court. His two companions, Mallacks, who were out on $10,000 bail each, escaped before the trial. Their bail was estreated.

HIT SOCIAL AID PROJECT

Plans of the city's social welfare committee to accommodate four social assistance families in a house on Menzies Street met with protests of neighboring residents Wednesday.

Sixty-five residents and property owners have signed a petition and a deputation has been granted permission to appear before the committee Friday morning at 10.30 at City Hall, Percy Sims, a resident, said today.

Chief complaint of the residents is the number of children they believe will be housed in the premises. They contend neither the house nor surrounding area is suitable. About 18 children may be accommodated in four suites.

Four or five months' work today still faced auditors of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission, who are preparing a report on the B.C. Electric's financial position, to be considered by the commission when it sits to consider the company's request for a permanent increase in power rates.

The commission will fix a date for the hearing of the company's case when its own auditors' report is submitted.

City and municipal councils, labor councils and other parties will be given an opportunity to speak on the company's application when the commission hearing is held.

Until then, the interim increase granted the company March 12 will be in effect.

U.S. Bombers Now Deadly By Night As Well As Day

TOKYO (UP). — B-29 Superfortresses can bomb almost as accurately by night as by day with a secret new radar technique, Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer announced today.

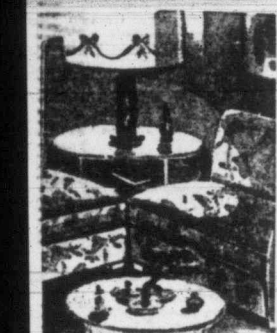

The Far East Air Force commander said a B-29 using the new technique has killed as many as 800 Communist troops in a single strike.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that the B-29 and B-26 night attacks . . . are materially reducing the enemy's capability and willingness to launch offensive operations

I think, after watching the fun at the B.C. Products Fair last night, that Don Anderson, chairman, with his Vice Chairmen Jim Anderson, Mo Park & Seth Halon are entitled to tilt back those chairs, put their feet on their desks, and say "There . . . we've done it! We could, the rest of it up to you." But you've no need to worry gentlemen, your show is a howling success, and all credit to your energetic assistants, fellows like Jim Anderson, Ivan Burch, Bill McLeod, Don McAlpine, Alf Evans, Stickney Harris, Vic Fuggle, Stan Britt, Jim Isaacs and Laverne Sands. It was a treat to me, as I'm sure it was for those thousands of others, to watch your show unfold . . . to see how every last detail had been worked out, and to marvel at the split-second timing . . . so TAKE A BOW! Producers, sit back & watch the dough roll in, while I watch the applause metre for your stars, Mr. Al Collins, and Mr. Fred Ober. Well . . . the metre-readings was the same . . . it's a tie.

"Al" for his mastery of the violin, Fred for his orchestra, personality & his wonderful voice. You know I often think that if I watch those two guys in action, that right here in our own home town, we have the "Big Time" . . . fellows who could be stars on anybody's radio show if they didn't just prefer living here among us. Al Smith, another lad whom everybody listens to at a quarter to eight every morning, was right in there too . . . "Just name it & 'Al' can play it." With just about as much energy as all those who produced this Fair. Yes . . . it's the B.C. Products Fair, & of course you know it's at the Arena & running all this week, to the grand finale this Saturday night, May 12th, when some lucky ticket-holder is going to drive away in their 1951 Pontiac Sedan. It's only a quarter to get past the fellow at the door, or you may want to buy a weekly pass & win that Pontiac . . . I know I did, 'cause I can get in buck-shee, that's because we're showing some of our MODERN MOOD urniture). I figured I'd rather take to have a new car . . . take chance like this any old day, guess you maybe are thinking I'm just trying to get you to come & see our little booth, just so we can make a few more miserable bucks! Is that what you're thinking?? Well . . . gotta be honest . . . we DID appreciate those hundreds of people who seemed to like our stuff, & even had to smile when we overheard one lady jostle another & say . . . "look . . . over here . . . those crazy Humber guys" . . . but the main reason we'd like you to get out one nite this week, is because we think you'll have one . . . of a good time. The contestants on the amateur show are as good as any you hear over the air, & Mr. Collins enceed them even better. The Fashion Show alone is worth the admission . . . lovely clothes in—loverly gals, and the lady commentator. Mr. Howard Hamaskie damaskie her stars with her own sparkling voice, so that even found myself kinda wishing we were in Ladies' Ready-to-Wear instead of the bulky stuff we shove around . . . but then again our chesierfields have fainty legs, nice curves, & well upholstered seats, 'cept they don't look so keen in bathing suits. So I'm on down eh . . . & don't forget to vote for your Queen, the prettiest gals you've ever seen. You can sit in the stands or stroll & stare, we think you'll enjoy this wonderful FAIR.

during the hours of darkness."

He said the radar development, coupled with the use of 500-pound bombs armed with proximity fuses "enables a single B-29 to rain down 600,000 high velocity shell fragments on any suspected enemy build-up."

Two Tots Drowned

PRINCE GEORGE (CP).—Two small girls were drowned Wednesday in the Anzac River, 60 miles north of here, when the boat in which they were riding capsized.

R.C.M.P. did not release their names. One of the girls was reported to be four years old, the other two.

Police said they were riding in a speedboat with their parents. Their bodies were not recovered.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

In most bridge hands the object of the defence is to kill the declarer (in a manner of speaking). Today's hand shows a refinement of that process, since East stood back and let South commit suicide.

West opened the king of diamonds, and South won with the ace. South expected to lose a diamond and perhaps two clubs, but he didn't foresee any trouble. He got a slight shock when he began to draw trumps and found that West could not follow suit on the second trump.

South properly abandoned trumps in order to tackle the clubs. He took the ace of clubs first and then led back towards dummy. West discarded, and East won with the jack of clubs.

East was in no hurry for a diamond trick, so he returned a trump. South won with the ten and led another club. This time East simply refused to take his king of clubs.

Now South had to throw himself on the sword. In order to return to his hand he had to ruff one of the red suits. This reduced his trump length so that he and East each had one trump left.

If South then drew the last trump, East would get in with his king of clubs to let loose an avalanche of diamonds. If South left the last trump at large, East would get in with the king of clubs and would return a red card to force out South's last trump.

Either way the contract was set. There would be a different story to tell if East made the mistake of taking the king of clubs when the trick was first offered to him. At that stage South still had two trumps to East's one. If East returned diamonds, South would lose one trick in that suit, ruff a third round of diamonds, and draw the last trump. Then he would be able to cash two good clubs, making his contract.

VICTORIAN SPRING

LXXXI

It was early that afternoon that the incident at the wharf occurred. Wearily, and on foot, Letty had been down every street in the capital, and regardless of the staring eyes, even into the cheapest of the hotels.

She had sought the man in her mind along the busy sidewalks and in the shops and saloons, remembering that the commissioner had told her to move warily about her search.

Here and there in the mob were men with arms in slings; with wooden legs; unsightly sores and growths . . . men for whom life could hold little but the gold they wanted, and what it could buy for them. And the same fever stamped each one of them, regardless of the color of their skin.

Finding an unwanted fortitude among such crowds, Letty had moved with the human tide along Wharf Street to the pier, her eyes scanning the faces of all those around and in front of her.

Then suddenly, down on the wooden steps leading from the pier to the water, her gaze was drawn to a couple of miners escorting a third man to a small boat in which there were already a few others waiting. He was so drunk and unsteady on his feet that they had to hold him tightly between them.

One of his two friends held her attention immediately, and she stood quite still. There was no mistake this time. He was the tall, fair man she had noticed on the stage last night—the one at whom the shot had been fired.

He might know! He would be almost certain to know . . . Even as she hurried forward down the wooden steps she realized that she might ruin everything by asking him directly about the matter. But whatever happened she had to speak, and time was slipping fast.

"Sir . . . if you'll wait a moment . . ."

The unsteady group stopped, and the fair man wheeled unevenly round, looking at her with a puzzled stare which turned slowly, even as she watched him, into a look of recognition.

"Sir—" (she was breathless with running, and the other man was already laughing at her confusion) " . . . were you not on the stage at the theatre last night?"

He did not reply, but after a moment nodded his head, studying her with curiosity.

"Did you see another man, sir . . . a man with a scar?"

"Meaning Jake?"—the words came from him too easily, with a hard laugh, then, as if regretting them, he tried to get rid of her with "Yours is not the only pretty face he's left with a frown on it, lady! And you won't find him. He's gone to the Cariboo!"

He slumped his drunken companion down into the small boat, and she gathered from some half-heard snatch of conversation between two others down there that they were heading for a ship offshore. "But where . . . where in the Cariboo?" she persisted.

The swarthy drunkard, now sagging into the stern of the boat, made his own contribution. "Poor girl! Poor, poor girl, dammit! Trust Jake Larrett! Off to Barkerville, lady—and if I meet him, 'til . . ." The alcoholic threat was stopped there, for the fair man, with a violent jerk of the head towards Letty, had punched him in the stomach. Only a gasp and a groan came from him now, and the boat was pushing off.

Letty stood there, helpless. But she was repeating to herself as she watched it go, the all-important words, "Jake Larrett . . . Barkerville . . ."

Mr. Cridge was sitting under the cherry tree, in the lazy warmth of the afternoon. On a table in front of him were two sheets of paper and a Bible. Although he was looking at them he did not really see them, for he was deep in the labyrinth of a sermon that was taking shape in his mind for the coming Sunday.

There was a trace of indignation in his face. The sermon would be about brotherly love and forbearance—but in his opinion the reason for it made righteous indignation quite a pardonable thing.

There had been letters in "The Colonist" again, complaining of the presence of both negroes and Indians in his congregation—at the same time, and during the same service as the white people. And since ventilation was still by no means perfect in the church,

All Washed Up At 13—Too Sentimental

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP).—Virginia Cox of Hollywood, Miss., bemoans the fact that she's all washed up in her chosen profession at the age of 13.

Virginia says it was a cruel quirk of nature that made her too soft-hearted to become a professional livestock exhibitor.

Virginia raised a prize-winning Aberdeen-Angus steer for the mid-south junior livestock show. After the show, the animal was sold for $483.

Virginia isn't happy with the money. She wishes she had her gentle bovine, Buster back.

"Buster was almost human," she cried as the animal was led away. "Now he'll be a steak—or roast."

Virginia has had various other pets—birds, stray kittens and homeless puppies. She says she missed them just as much when they died or strayed as she did when Buster was led away.

So Virginia figures she's all washed up at the age of 13. Now she'll have to pick out another profession, one where you don't have to raise animals and then part with them.

Glass On Highway Promotes Safety

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UP).—Glass on Kansas highways is saving lives.

The glass isn't in chunks or slivers. It is dropped into white and yellow paint in the shape of beads 1-32 of an inch in diameter.

William Gibson, engineer in the state highway laboratory, said the state is using thousands of gallons of glass annually on the highway markings.

Gibson began experimenting with glass in 1932. The beads worked so well in reflecting the light of automobiles that their use has spread across the nation.
